State Bankers are Told Situation Is Not Serious, However

Milwaukee —(P)—If the allies are defeated in the European war, the United States may have to revamp its entire philosophy of life and manner of living, W. J. Tesch of Merrill, president of the Wisconsin Bankers association, declared here today.

Tesch told the association's forty-eighth annual convention:

"Should the allies be beaten, and Hitler appoint his high commissioners in Paris and London, and our own security be threatened, we may have to remould our entire philosophy of life and manner of living for the time being; we may have to bend all our energy and enlist all our resources to maintain that priceless privilege of personal liberty that means so much to every right-thinking person."

Tesch asserted that "we should not allow ourselves to become panicky and hysterical," adding:

"I do not believe our institutions and our manner of living are seriously threatened, if we will put our own house in order."

"For nearly 10 years, we have been in a depression. Serious domestic problems, unemployment, steadily mounting public debt—in spite of all the pump priming and other artificial stimulants—are no nearer solution than they were when the depression came on."

Referring to the problems facing the banks, Tesch said that "fear of the future, fear of the unpredictable, has slowed up enterprise, has piled up idle money in the banks."

"The past year has been a particularly trying one in the banking business," he added. "The declaration of war in Europe, with all the uncertainties and problems that came in its wake, has resulted in a number of major breaks in the security and commodity markets, making it impossible to plan even a week ahead."

"Under such conditions, a high order of banking ability is required to carry on and maintain the banking structure on an even keel. I am pleased to say, however, that our banks generally have met the issues and problems as they presented themselves in a sound and practical way."

"I think it can be truthfully said that our banking system as a whole is in a better position today to weather a severe storm, in case it comes, than it has been in many years," Tesch said.

Senate Reports On 'Vote Buying'

Dewey and Vandenberg Cleared of Excessive Expenditure Charges

Washington —(P)—Complaints of excessive expenditures in the Dewey or Vandenberg presidential primary campaigns in three states lack foundation, the senate campaign investigating committee reports.

Chairman Gillette (D-Iowa) announced last night that inquiries in Nebraska, Wisconsin and Maryland failed to establish evidence of "unreasonably large expenditures."

In Nebraska and Wisconsin, Thomas E. Dewey, New York prosecutor, defeated Senator Vandenberg of Michigan in the Republican primaries. In Maryland Dewey had no opposition.

Gillette reported on other investigations as follows:

West Virginia—Evidence of "vote buying" uncovered and turned over to state authorities for action.

New Jersey—Evidence found that WPA workers had been "indirectly coerced" into buying tickets for the Democratic excursion of a Democratic association. Evidence turned over to WPA administrator.

Maryland—Expenditures "too large for the public interest" found in senatorial primaries of both major parties.

Missouri—Voluminous reports have been filed by investigators on the Democratic senatorial primary, but have not yet received committee study.

Ohio—Charges of irregularities in the Republican senatorial campaign lacked basis.

State Constitution, 93-Years-Old, Never Has Been Revised

Merrill —(P)—During Wisconsin's 93 years of statehood its constitution never has been subjected to a comprehensive revision, Attorney General John Martin told the Wisconsin County Boards association, convened here yesterday.

"Fundamentally it remains the same instrument which was adopted in 1848," he said. "This does not mean that it has necessarily become obsolete. In that span of 93 years it has undergone numerous amendments."

Other speakers included Dr. J. D. Eastwood of Spomer, association president; Frank A. Stewart of Verona, secretary, and Prof. D. J. Colbert of the University of Wisconsin department of social sciences, originator of citizenship day observance programs.

President Roosevelt yesterday sent the names of two postmasters in the Appleton vicinity to the senate for confirmation.

They are Michael P. Becker, Brillion postmaster, and George A. Sauer, postmaster at Kimberly.

FORD, AIDE TALK PLANE PRODUCTION

Henry Ford (right) and Charles E. Sorenson, general manager of the Ford Motor Company, are shown in Detroit near the tail assemblage of an army observation plane as they discussed the possibility of mass production of aircraft for the nation's defenses. Ford recently said that his plant could build 1,000 standard planes a day under certain conditions.

Italy's Action Isn't Straw That's Going to Break the Camel's Back, MacKenzie Says

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York —(P)—Someway I have a feeling that Italy's entrance into the war isn't the straw that's going to break the camel's back.

Please don't misunderstand. I'm not underestimating the undoubtedly increase in the danger to the Anglo-French allies, whose peril already is great.

Still, it has yet to be demonstrated that Mussolini can throw his weight to such advantage that it will crush the already over-burdened French armies.

That is Hitler's sole business in life at the moment—to crush France. The success or failure of his plans for also overthrowing the British empire are premised on the collapse of the French. Hitler's business must be Mussolini's business from now on.

Hence, Berlin's jubilation over the duce's action in rushing in for the kill at a moment when the epic resistance of the poilu is causing the Germans a terrific loss of life and irreparable supplies. We shouldn't forget that neither Germany nor Italy can stand a long war because of lack of resources. That's their own great danger.

We must wait to see what Mussolini's line of attack is before being able to estimate the damage. But to return to my opening figure of speech, we must not make the mistake of assuming in advance that the camel's back is necessarily going to be broken by this straw or any other.

It is true that the Italo-German hook-up may force the French to surrender. But it may not.

I should say that the greatest immediate danger to France is the powerful Italian air-force. The French could take a lot of knocking about in their African possessions or Corsica, for instance, without being laid out in continental France. But if Mussolini should drive his bombers at the heart of France the position would be much more grave.

So far as invasion of Italian troops from the south is concerned, Mother Nature has done mightily well for France in the chain of Alps which run between the two countries.

Strong Fortifications On Coast

On the coast, the foothills of these great mountains, the French have created artillery bases, tank pits and cement pill-boxes for machine guns. Back in the range come, if not all, of the strategic peaks have been fortified. These command the valleys.

France's big worry of the moment, of course, is the holding of that terrific German drive on Paris. The big danger spot, to my mind, is the French left wing which is being rolled back from the coast along the Seine.

Over the rest of the long battle-line the French high command claims to be holding, though the Germans assert that the enemy is withdrawing. The allies have been standing off odds which at best have been perhaps two to one and in many instances must have run to 10 to one against them.

The left flank, however, has continued to give, thereby not only increasing the danger to Paris but threatening to encircle the French wing. Isolated tanks even are reported to have raced through to the outskirts of Paris, though the main lines are many miles away.

And what if the German army reaches the capital? Does this mean the end of French resistance?

May Capture Paris

I'm sure that question must have been in your minds often, and in view of the gravity of the situation the time has come for us to examine that contingency. In doing so we needn't forget that the first German

Mass Production of Planes to be Simple Task, Ford Declares

Detroit —(P)—Mass production of high-speed pursuit planes for the United States army—at least 1,000 a day within six months—not only will be a simple task, Henry Ford said today, but they can be rolled off his assembly lines without interruption to normal output of automobiles.

The 76-year-old Ford made this assertion in an interview after he and his engineers had inspected thoroughly yesterday the type of plane the United States war department believes would be "most needed in an emergency." It was a Curtiss P-40, single-engine machine with a top speed of 367 miles an hour.

DUCE DECLARES WAR ON 'STARVERS'

This picture, sent by telephoto from Rome to Berlin and by radio to New York, shows Premier Mussolini as he cast the fateful die in a dramatic war declaration against the Allies, calling them "starvers" and the holders of "all the riches and gold on earth."

War Situation Today

"Destruction" of two entire French armies in the great battle for Paris was reported by informed sources in Berlin today who said Hitler's mechanized columns were speeding southward to slice France in half and meet Italian troops from the east.

Nazi estimated the two French armies comprised between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 men—apparently an extremely high figure since the whole mobilized strength of France has been reported not much more than five million.

Only 1,500,000 French troops were believed engaged in the battle of France.

There was no hint of any catastrophic slaughter in dispatches from either Paris or London. Both allied capitals, in fact, have told of preponderantly huge German losses.

Seizure of 14 Italian ships in the early hours of the new side of the war precipitated by Italy was announced in the house of commons in London today.

Ten other Italian ships are in British ports.

The French high command reported that Weygand's French armies had stemmed a tempestuous Nazi "scythe" attack aimed at seizing the French capital from the rear, while Italy still masked her plan of attack as a full military partner of Germany.

"On the Alps front, our troops are in position and have not been attacked," said the French communique.

The German high command asserted that the right wing and center of the German armies "are relentlessly pursuing the defeated French armies."

A German military spokesman declared the French capital was being "immediately threatened."

In Rome, authoritative sources said Mussolini's fascists "undoubtedly were engaging the allies" since the zero hour had been set for dawn.

London took renewed hope from President Roosevelt's pledge of full "material help" from the United States, and applauded Roosevelt's dramatic description of Italy's war declaration as a dagger plunge "in the back of its neighbor."

Turkey was reported preparing to live up to her mutual assistance pact with Britain and France, although her next step was not made clear.

All the Balkan nations rushed more troops to their borders in that ever-worried corner of the world, and all kept eyes on Turkey and Soviet Russia.

Demonstrations Against Italians in British Cities

London —(P)—A series of violent demonstrations in which Britons expressed their resentment at Italy's entrance into the European conflict set the stage today for a statement by Prime Minister Churchill on the general war situation.

Mingled with outward evidences of anger at Italy were expressions of approval for President Roosevelt's speech last night in which he pledged the material resources of the United States to the aid of the allies.

The press gave almost as much attention to the president's speech as to Italy's declaration of war, and official sources applauded his words as encouraging the allies to "fight with greater confidence."

"The material resources of the United States, added to those of the allies," said one spokesman, "will prove to be a vital factor in the struggle now going on between the democracies of the west and the anti-Christian forces of barbarism."

In London, Liverpool, Edinburgh and other population centers, angry crowds participated last night in wild riots, hurling bricks and bottles through Italian store fronts before they could be checked by police. About 100 arrests were made in Edinburgh.

The riots broke out at Scotland Yard began a roundup of Italian residents regarded as potential fifth columnists. Raids on Italian fascist clubs in London were executed during the night, and hundreds of suspects were whisked away for interrogation.

Officials estimated that about 25,000 Italians live in the United Kingdom, of whom 19,000 are registered as aliens. The rest are either naturalized British subjects or are under 16 years of age.

The nation responded to the Italian challenge by renewing its war efforts on land, sea and in the air.

Official announcements disclosed that "important contingents" of new troops had been disembarked in France, that the British fleet had launched a bombardment of the German west flank along the channel and that reinforced units of the royal air force entered the thick of the fight.

The government said it had been preparing for months for the eventuality of Italy's intervention in the war and that it was ready to "meet the sword with the sword."

Italians Assert Fighting Started

tions frequently brought curious Romans to the windows.

Authoritative sources withheld comment on President Roosevelt's speech last night, saying they had not had time to read it.

In his proclamation, the king exhorted his armed forces "of the land sea and air" to prepare themselves "to face difficult tests" in the fight alongside Germany.

Only a declaration by Mussolini placing the recent civilian mobilization law into effect remained to put the nation 100 per cent into war.

Badoglio Commands

Premier Mussolini, as commander of the Italian army, today appointed Marshal Pietro Badoglio chief of the general staff in an order of the day calling on the armed forces to conquer.

The other chiefs of staff—Marshal Rodolfo Graziani for the army, Admiral Domenico Cavagnari for the navy, and General Francisco Prisco for aviation remained.

"By decision of his majesty, the king-emperor, I today take over command of the troops operating on all fronts," Mussolini's order said, announcing the appointment of Badoglio and the retention of the others.

Delinquency Rate At New London Is Low, Lodge Is Told

Walter Stewart Presents Report on City's Juvenile Records

New London — To disprove the belief of the last several years that New London suffers a high rate of juvenile delinquency, Walter Stewart, president of the New London Lodge, presented a report on the city's juvenile records at a meeting of the lodge last night. Stewart declared that New London's record was the most favorable in the state.

Mr. Stewart presented the results of a citizens' survey of court records conducted by him and the Rev. H. P. Reksdahl during the last year in an effort to stem the growing sentiment that placed New London in a bad light among its neighboring communities and throughout the state.

First, he said, inquiries to the Wisconsin Reference Library, state sociology departments and parole boards revealed the fact that there is no comparative record of any kind kept anywhere in Wisconsin, removing completely the possibility for any authoritative statement concerning conditions in New London. Records of commitments to institutions are no basis for any comparison with another community, Stewart said.

City Has Everything
Delinquency flourishes only in communities with a low standard of living, poor school facilities and lack of spiritual leadership, none of which exist in New London, he said. He particularly praised the city's fine school system, but pointed out that it did not always have the supervised recreation, directed intramural programs and public gymnasium it has now.

With special permission from authorities, county records at Waupaca were canvassed back through the last 19 years from 1920 to 1938, he reported. A total of 79 juvenile cases were found for the period, an average of about four per year. The highest number of offenses occurred in 1923 when 14 were recorded, every one truancy. With modern school inducements, truancy is the most minor of youth problems today, he said.

Check 269 Cases
During the peak of the bootlegging period from 1928 to 1931, 14 juvenile cases were recorded, all theft or larceny. Of the arrested, 13 were paroled and one sent to industrial school.

In checking the records, the investigators also included figures on adults and adolescents, uncovering a total of 269 New London cases. New London's record for adolescents from the ages of 16 to 21 is almost perfect, Mr. Stewart reported. Analyzing the types of offenses, the speaker reported abandonment headed the adult list, followed in order by drunkenness, larceny, rape and adultery, forgery, and illegal fishing. Adolescent offenses were confined entirely to burglary and larceny. Juvenile cases listed theft and larceny first, then truancy, property damage and runaway.

"The problem of youth is the greatest facing our nation even though most of us don't realize it," Stewart said. "While it may be sidetracked at times, like it is now by the prominence of war, it always has and always will reassert itself to those who are conscientious about the responsibility toward our future citizens."

Young Evergreen Trees Given at Hatten Park

New London — Three thousand young evergreen trees have been donated to the Hatten Recreation park by the Uecker Evergreen nursery and have been transplanted to the park during the last several weeks. # Hashouse Squad Beats High Lives

Winners Show Power in Opening Game of Commercial League

New London — Shoney's Hashouse turned out to be a potential powerhouse as they defeated the Miller High Lives 13 to 9 in the first game of the City Commercial league at Washington High school last evening.

The winners had a big inning in the second when they batted all around for seven runs. Bob Nelson proved the star at bat for the Hashouse gang. In the second he clouted a home run with two men on bases for three runs and opened the fifth with a triple when the team gathered another four runs. Guy Barington followed up with a triple in the second inning to clear the bases for three more runs and Weldon Harris walked for the seventh tally. George Huntley punted a homer in the fifth with two men on bases to gather his share of honors.

The High Lives had only one good inning, the fifth, when they gathered three runs, two on walks.

Russell White and Sam Huzzar tossed for the losers with Francis Davidson and Kenneth Meeking catching. Wilmer Graichen and Bob Nelson pitched for the winners with Bob Seering and Weldon Harris catching.

Each member of the losing team must pay 10 cents into the league treasury.

Wednesday evening the Pure Oil Products and the Pure Milk Products teams will meet for their first game.

At 8:15 this evening, the Pure Oils will play the Borden All-Stars in an exhibition game under the lights at the city ball park. The latter's game at Waupaca has been postponed. Berlin is scheduled to play the All-Stars here Friday evening.

American Newsmen Hope to Clean Up Guild or Quit It

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York — The American members of the Newspaper Guild, as distinguished from the communists and fellow-travelers who now control the organization, are organizing for a scrap at the convention in Memphis in July. They hope to capture the key positions and control of the policies, and thus break off the unwritten but very effective relationship between the guild and the Communist party.

The communists deny that they control the guild, and deny that they are communists, but they do and they are, and that is all there is to that. If the influence that established the Moscow relationship emerges from the convention still in control a mass withdrawal of the American element probably will occur. A few hopeful idealists might remain, but the defections, added to the majority of newspapermen and women who never have joined the guild, would far outnumber the remaining guild strength.

The communist control, centered in New York, is exercised by conspirators who either never have been newspapermen and women in the common understanding of the terms or who were mediocre and became embittered by their own failure. Those of the communist element who have ability are devoted wholly to communism and remain in the newspaper business only to work for the destruction of the business and the jobs of the majority.

The most spectacular villains of the publishing business are loyal friends of the American rank and file by comparison with the communists in control of the guild, which began with five purposes, but went haywire almost immediately. It has made some material gains for a few employees, but most of these gains the employers in question yielded voluntarily.

The leadership, however, has made a pretense of furious struggle on behalf of these few beneficiaries, provoking quarrels with the owners in order to make it appear that they are fighting heroically for the rank and file.

The hidden possibilities of the guild have revealed themselves in the actions and omissions of the controlling group. Any Little Weekly Could Produce Votes

The American newspapermen and women naturally thought that this was to be a union of newspaper people only, meaning regular employees of the standard American daily newspapers. However, any cell of the communist party can bring out a little weekly, in a foreign language if they prefer, with a circulation of a few hundred copies published only to serve the pretext, and call that publication a shop with rights to representation. The pay may be zero or far below the standard required of American publishers and the mock-journalists involved may be furriers or mimeograph propagandists by trade and journalists only by pretense and collusion. The publication office may consist only of a name on the door and there may be no physical properties whatever, neither presses nor a typewriter. Nevertheless such a sham publication may certify seven members and the vote of these seven will be equal to the votes of 25 American employees in the newspaper business in Des Moines or St. Joe.

The communists have tried in many ways to destroy the American daily press. One of their demands would forbid a publisher to let out guild members for reasons of economy. This would mean that a losing paper would have to go deeper and deeper into debt with no chance to recover. Bankruptcy and the death of the paper with consequent loss of jobs to all concerned is the communist objective. They have also claimed the right to select the men and women for all job openings. Granted this privilege throughout the business, they would lead American journalism with communists, to the total exclusion of Americans. In New York a showdown occurred when the Communist Daily Worker fired a backslider for refusing to write against his opinions under his name. The guild did nothing, although there would have been a violent protest and probably a strike had an American publisher attempted a similar imposition.

Must Oust Bolos
Or Pull Out of Guild

Moreover, this incident threw into prominence the fact that the Worker discriminates against Americans for their political belief, in many cases on 100 per cent obedience to the Moscow line in all its employees, in addition to which violation of a principle imposed on the American publishers the worker pays miserable wages without molestation from the guild.

The communist control favors communist or party-line publications by waiving the conditions of wages, hours and nondiscrimination which are angrily insisted upon in dealings with the American publishers. And American journalists risk permanent exclusion from their calling by refusing, in certain conditions, to serve the communist line.

The only hope of the Americans is to destroy the communist control or quit the guild in such numbers that it will lose even a pretense of representative character.

A QUESTION OF EMPIRE

The variety and complexity of the problems of Britain's farflung empire appeared the other day when the judicial committee of the Privy Council dismissed the appeal of N. K. Ambule, a subordinate chief of Swaziland upon whom had been passed a death sentence for having used his trusted medicine man to pour arsenic down the throats of one of his wives, a brother and the brother's wife.

In dealing with savage peoples the English have succeeded well because of temperate policies. They pay respect to tribal laws or customs and when they find them hideously barbaric they gradually but insistently secure changes in them.

The trial in far away Swaziland involved mostly a question of intent. The accused chieftain denied murder in its most naked aspects and claimed that all he asked of the medicine man was performance of a ceremony called luzego, something he had a perfect right to invoke. The chieftain had been bothered by bad dreams. And bad dreams are no joke in Swaziland. Luzego is the recognized cure, and a perfectly proper one if the bad dreams be occasioned by the misconduct of others, a conclusion the people of Swaziland accept without controversy. But luzego is an involved procedure necessitating the construction of a special rope which is placed by night over the graves of certain departed persons who are thought to be responsible for the bad dreams. Not only will the ceremony, when correctly staged by an able medicine man, immediately terminate the dreams but in addition to another ritual it will avenge the death of the departed if he happens to have been murdered because the rope will break and the living killer will drop dead.

In the case of the Swazi chieftain the witch doctor claims that he was directed to perform a dengelo instead of a luzego. The dengelo has some of the aspects of a luzego but is followed by spectators partaking of a drink of whose contents they know not. Here is where the arsenic was dropped in the cup and the chief's enemies succumbed with all desirable dispatch.

It is a delicate affair for the English government to bring a chieftain to trial, convict him and execute him but when colonial governors find local chiefs with sadistic impulses and giving a perverted turn to their authority someone must do something to protect the innocents in their charge.

Obviously, too, this is an extremely touchy operation since it involves a densely ignorant people attempting to read life out of dreams and clouds, and who are naturally suspicious of the white man and his purposes. So the trial is held openly inasmuch as the purpose is to impress the natives with the fairness of English justice so as to break the stranglehold held by a man turned monster.

It is likely that the crowd of natives who heard the evidence departed to their jungle haunts with less respect for luzego, dengelo and arsenic feeding medicine men.

ITALY GOES TO WAR

It may be fairly doubted whether a nation of millions of people ever went to war in all the tragic history of mankind with less reason than Italy.

Its peacock strutting Nero strained and labored to find some excuse to support the atrocity and ended with the attempt to fire the greed and mendacity of his people by painting the Allies as wealthier, the precise argument used daily by gangsters to recruit their membership.

It is another case of the jackal wanting part of the carcass it thinks the lion is about to bring down.

While the German people may accept the declaration as cheering news it is to be doubted whether the astute rulers of the Reich wanted Italy at war. Certainly Germany would have been far better off in World War No. 1 if she hadn't a single ally. She was forced to spend much of her time in bolstering up the crumbling defenses of her associates.

Although France and Britain are backed to the wall it is Germany that is in desperate need of peace. And the advantage that she can expect from Italy's participation is that it will further her drive to obtain an end of the conflict while her fortunes are in the ascendancy.

Whatever may be said about the stupidity of democracies, their dull and foolish fumbling, we trust they will never make as black and horrible a record for betrayal and knavery as Mussolini yesterday made for the tyrant's realm over which he rules.

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY, ITS MEN AND ITS PRINCIPLES

The Democratic party at Green Bay that purged its adoration for Mr. Roosevelt and voted him a third term is the same party that when last in national power promised the people to work faithfully for a constitutional amendment that would prevent any man from having more than one term in the presidency. And then forgot its promise.

And the Democratic party of Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt that shoveled out wealth from the national treasury on a 24-hour shift is the same party that places a wreath annually upon the grave of General Jackson, the man who led it when it recorded its greatest achievement as economy and the payment of the national debt.

But the Democrats in Wisconsin, who haven't one chance in a hundred of electing a governor this fall, did elect in 1932 a man for that office whose record of justice, tranquillity and efficiency is probably the best in the last two generations. Mr. Schmedeman couldn't be reelected. He was too sincere and free from blarney.

There is a distressing thing about these facts enumerated and to which other facts might be added concerning other parties. It is the emphasis that is placed on men as principles fade out and disappear. A government of men, a government ruled by the changing ideas of men, their whims and caprices, is a government rushing to its doom, whereas a government that is operated according to the proven righteousness of demonstrated rules and irrespective of the favorites affected or the difficulties of the hour is a government that is bound to endure.

More and more as America denounces totalitarianism with its rules changing from day to day, and its absence of principles, it is in fact embracing many of the trappings of the very form of government it so loudly condemns.

UNIVERSAL MILITARY TRAINING

The New York Times says that in the interest of self-protection the time has come when America should at once adopt a national system of universal compulsory military training. The Times declares this "as a newspaper which has never before believed in the wisdom of such a policy in time of peace" but declares it now "because the logic of events drives us remorselessly to this conclusion." The Post-Crescent supports it as a newspaper that has always believed in it and because the very logic of intelligent caution has advised it with unrelenting certainty.

The Times may support this proposition because it is somewhat unnerved at the apparition of Hitler coming up the bay. We support it irrespective of potential enemies and for the wonderful good it would do to the health, the morals and the manhood of our youth.

No greater system of mass training has been developed than military training. Men are given a practical demonstration in ways of life that are invaluable to them. They learn that everything that comes out well must be scrupulously planned. They observe the indispensability of each group working in unison with other groups. They absorb the advantage of a decent discipline which in fact is a courtesy and a kindness as well as an obedience.

Military training is cleanliness and efficiency. It is independence and self-reliance. It hasn't a single drawback, not a black mark.

And some day it may be utilized to the salvation of a nation.

WHEN JERRY RUNS AWAY

When Jerry runs away, his mother calls, And if he does not answer, down the street She goes for him. Her shadow often falls Across his twinkling feet.

Jerry is only three. The sunbeams hide In his fair hair. He borrowed the soft blue Of morning skies for his glad gaze. His stride Is fearless, proud and true.

When Jerry runs away, his mother knows He will not wander far! She will rejoice If through the years, her darling never goes Beyond her loving voice!

Opinions of Others

HE SHOULD EXPECT IT

The ruling of a San Jose divorce court, that it is not cruelty if a wife kicks her husband under the bridge table, is, we think, in line with the general state of judicial feeling. When bridge gets along to the kicking phase, it becomes an occupation, and a few boots in the shins in the course of an evening's hard play are no more than occupational hazards.

One of the big leagues' outstanding catchers is a bridge player of parts in the off season and, we are given to understand, goes on wearing his leg armor all winter, for some of the most successful of players are as cruelly scarred below the knees as any duff. The quality of one's game is, of itself, no protection. In California, the husband has trumped the little woman's ace—usually cited as a crime justifying everything up to electrocution; but a trump may very well be the correct play on partner's ace. We should like to know more about the hand.

The legislatures and courts do not set forth how far one may go in the direction of violence in bridge, but in specific issues their attitude is ever one of indulgence. Among the indoor pastimes, bridge occupies a place analogous to ice hockey, where mayhem is to be anticipated in moments of tension, and condoned. The loser at hockey takes his 17 stitches like a man; he wouldn't dream of calling in a lawyer. This fellow in San Jose is probably just not rugged enough for family bridge.—Detroit News.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—Last week The Washington Merry-Go-Round revealed how 1,800,000 Enfield rifles manufactured for the British in 1918 could not be sold to the allies because of a war department order of March 14, 1940, preventing the sale of surplus arms to any agent who might possibly resell them to the allies.

The order was issued at a time when President Roosevelt had announced a vigorous policy of giving the allies every possible aid and was definitely in conflict with that policy. Just how the order happened to be issued still remains a mystery.

However, immediately after publication of the Merry-Go-Round story, the order was rescinded and the circumstances surrounding the change are not a mystery. They revealed that some officials in the war department are not too cooperative in carrying out the Roosevelt policy of giving material help to the allies.

What happened was this: When Roosevelt heard that the army had prohibited sales to agents suspected of reselling to the allies, he told Secretary Morgenthau to look into the matter, and if legal, to have the order changed.

Morgenthau, who is in charge of selling goods to the allies, asked his lawyers to investigate, and they informed him that under international law the United States government could not sell arms direct to a belligerent, but there was no reason whatsoever why it should not sell to a third party.

ROOSEVELT ORDERS

Morgenthau then called in General George Marshall, chief of staff, and told him the president's wishes. He made it very clear that the March 14 order must be changed and immediately.

But several days went by and nothing happened. The war department order was not changed. Meanwhile the allies were in desperate need of more material. They lost vast stores of guns and ammunition in Belgium. They were anxious to buy even outmoded equipment which the United States had manufactured for the World war.

Finally one of the allied agents flew to Morgenthau's home in New York, where he was spending the week-end, and entered a plea for prompt action.

Next day Morgenthau returned to Washington and immediately called a conference of war department chiefs, plus Francis Biddle, acting attorney general. Biddle arrived at the conference in cutaway coat and pin-striped trousers straight from arguing a case before the Supreme court.

"Gentlemen," said Secretary Morgenthau, "the president has directed that if there is sound legal basis for changing this order, it be changed, and changed immediately."

From then on things began to happen. The justice department legal experts jumped into the picture and Francis Biddle worked until midnight drafting an opinion knocking out the war department's order. The day was hot. When he finished at 12:20 a.m. his stiff shirt was wilted, his high formal collar was a moist rag.

"NO CRUMBS FOR VENEZUELA"

Next day Major General Allen W. Gullion, the army's able judge advocate general, was asked whether he would accept the ruling of the attorney general.

"He is my superior officer," Gullion replied. "I never question his acts."

Next day, also, Secretary Woodring returned from Kansas and came over to the treasury department to see what the shooting was all about.

He seemed much concerned, said he had no idea that his order of March 14 would have a serious effect upon the allies. He had merely wanted to keep agents who were not properly credited at the state department from bothering his army officers.

He did mention the fact that for about two weeks the allies had been moving heaven and earth with his own officers to secure U. S. surplus weapons.

Later that day Secretary Morgenthau warned Arthur Purvis, head of the allied purchasing mission: "You'd better order whatever you want right away. Tomorrow we may sell all this stuff to Venezuela."

Late that night Purvis telephoned to say: "Mr. Secretary, there isn't a crumb left for Venezuela."

CIO POW-WOW

Thanks to the absence, because of illness, of Sidney Hillman, leader of the anti-leftwingers, the CIO executive committee deliberations went off peacefully. But while the smoldering blow-up did not occur, there was a distinct undercurrent of tension.

The big trade-union chiefs, Phil Murray of the Steel Workers, R. J. Thomas of the Auto Workers, and Tom Burn of the Rubber Workers, were on the alert to squelch any left-wing "party line" tactics. The left-wingers, representing chiefly the small unions, were clearly restive but apparently afraid to start anything. When they did they were sat on promptly.

In two squabbles regarding jurisdiction over small unions, the left-wingers were curiously ordered to keep hands off. Then came the drafting of a resolution to approve the administration's national defense program and denounce fifth column activities.

John L. Lewis appointed Murray, Thomas and Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, to write this resolution. When the group met, Murray pulled out an already prepared draft. Pressman, a militant left-winger, strenuously objected.

He insisted that it be shown to Lewis before being submitted to the conference. But if Pressman expected support from John L., he was disappointed. After a cursory glance at the resolution, Lewis nodded approval and handed it back.

UNNAMED AGGRESSORS

Later, however, when Burns, during the floor discussion, urged that the resolution include a denunciation of the "aggressor powers," Lewis blocked the move.

"I think it's time we speak out and name names," Burns demanded. "We ought to go on record as denouncing Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia as aggressors and make no bones about it."

Without getting up from his chair, Lewis rumbled, "I'm against that. If we're going to start naming aggressors we'll have to take in a great deal of territory and name a lot of names." The left-wingers enthusiastically applauded.

Note—The drive within the CIO to eliminate left-wingers from the leadership is rapidly gaining momentum. When a group of them slipped a resolution through the Indiana executive board condemning the European war as "imperialistic" and Roosevelt as trying to involve the U. S., the aroused trade-union forces repudiated the declaration and Alice Smith, left-wing leader, was fired as secretary of the regional Auto Workers office. Leader of the opposition against the group was Jim Robb, coal miner and Lewis' personal representative in Indiana.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—Four years ago, one-time Brigadier General William (Billy) Mitchell, prophet of modern aerial warfare, died after being court-martialed by the United States army.

Stinnett

Officer at the age of 18—youngest officer in the Spanish-American war.

Fifteen years before the second World war, General Mitchell said: "An air attack directed against England has a greater chance of success than an attack by sea or land. Undoubtedly this is how she will be attacked, she is more vulnerable than ever before."

Mitchell re-enlisted after the Spanish-American war and served in the Philippine insurrection, the Cuban rebellion in 1906-07, and the Mexican border trouble in 1916.

Less than 10 years later and long before any present-day congressman had cast his vote for the great defense program, Brigadier General Mitchell said: "Two overseas routes (for planes attacking the United States) are perfectly feasible. One is over the Atlantic by way of Iceland and Greenland to Canada and the other is over the Pacific, by way of Siberia, Alaska and the Pacific coast islands."

Colonel Mitchell was the first American officer under fire in the World war and (April 22, 1917) the first American flying officer to cross the enemy lines.

Area Vital to U. S.

Seventeen years later, he said: "Of all the large cities in the world, New York offers the ideal target for aerial attack. Although the United States generally is fortunate in this respect, because of its size, should the triangle formed by Chicago, Chesapeake Bay and Bangor, Maine, be laid waste by an attacking air force and complete mastery of the air be obtained by a foe, for the United States to continue any resistance would be futile and well-nigh impossible."

In 1918, Brigadier-General Mitchell, head of our overseas air force, was given the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Service Medal "for repeated acts of extraordinary heroism." He also was decorated with two British orders and was made a member of the French Legion of Honor.

Three years later, he was advocating a separate air force independent of the army and navy, but with all three branches under a single "department of national defense." In 1921-22, he commanded the air force in a series of experiments to prove that planes could sink a submarine, a destroyer, a cruiser, and three battleships. The experiments were successful.

Demoted for Activities

In June, 1925, the general was "broken" to a colonel and "sent to Texas" because of "outspoken military criticism." In mid-winter of that year, he was court-martialed, found guilty, and suspended from the army. A few months later, his resignation was accepted.

For several years, in speech and print, he continued his fight with such statements as: "Surface navies have entirely lost their mission of defending a coast because aircraft can destroy or sink any seacraft coming within their radius of operation. . . . If sufficient aircraft are not on hand at the beginning of a war, supremacy in the air can never be obtained."

The "Stormy Petrel" of American aviation died Feb. 19, 1938, at the age of 57. He was buried at Milwaukee with military honors.

TIME FOR PROTEST

Editor, Post-Crescent: It must appear evident to all who read the daily papers, even casually, that we are not only drifting toward war but are being shoved into that European debacle at a very uncomfortable rate.

If that is what we want, all that is necessary to help accomplish that end is to continue our lethargic silence and not let our representatives in Washington know where we stand. The war propagandists will do the rest for they are doing a splendid job in the matter of creating war hysteria.

However, if we crave for our boys the normal span of life that God intended for them and which is every young man's right to claim, it would be well, I think, for us to lose no more time in making our desires known. It is so much easier for us parents to plead their cause than for the men of fighting age to do so themselves because many young men, no matter how much opposed to war they may be, would choose death in preference to even an appearance to being cowardly.

In a lecture here in the Presbyterian church recently Dr. Walter Judd, medical missionary to China, made the statement that many people fail to let their representatives know how they stand on public questions because they do not know

PSYCHOLOGY OF DIGESTION

Many of the erroneous ideas of doctors and laymen in reference to food and digestion were based on the limited scientific knowledge of our forefathers had of these things. Perhaps that is the reason why such fallacies persist, in the minds of laymen and some physicians, long after their unsoundness has been shown by scientific investigation, and proved by experience. It takes many years to persuade the rank and file of the medical profession to acknowledge some traditional medical theory or belief was wrong after its falsity has been established to the satisfaction of a reasonable mind. And even after the doctors begin to discard the shattered belief and practice, it takes many more years for the general laity to catch on.

For example most people and not a few physicians imagine certain foods are "indigestible" or difficult to digest, and hence that foods selected for invalids or for persons with any disorder involving the digestive organs or functions should be of the "easily digested" class and foods "difficult to digest" should be excluded from the diet.

There is room to mention only a dozen of the fallacies in reference to food and digestion which are accepted as facts by many laymen and some physicians:

The fallacy that one with albuminuria must not eat white of eggs.

The fallacy that the liberal use of meat in the diet favors or causes "acidosis."

The fallacy that certain foods "form mucus."

The fallacy that fresh or hot bread, soda biscuit, pancakes and biscuit made with baking powder are not digestible.

whom to write not just how to address correspondence to our legislators. Therefore, for the benefit of those who may fail to do their duty on this account, the names and addresses of the persons to write are hereby submitted: Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Senate Office Bldg., Washington, D. C.; Senator Alexander Wiley, same address; Hon. Joshua I. Johns, House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

With the shaping of world events I think most of us believe in a reasonable amount of preparedness here at home. Few men would refuse to defend our own country but, I believe, just as few have any desire to be buried in European mud. Now with war hysteria already in the air, what chance have our legislators to vote right on the question of sending our boys over there when they are not only goaded by war propagandists but when we agree with that propaganda by our very silence?

If the two imperialisms over there must quarrel and fight periodically, it seems that we can do little to stop them, but in the name of civil decency to our boys who had nothing to do with the causes of that war, let us older folks help them claim their God-given right to live. Let us exercise the only voice we have right now.

My boy is only six, but yours may be old enough to be sent over there. If that thing happens, let it be over our protest that we may never feel the sting of guilt that naturally comes from the knowledge of neglected duty.

No matter how simple the language used, let us write our representatives in Washington today, even if no more than what can be stated on a post card. Tomorrow may be too late because events are happening at a rapid pace. Then too, it is so easy to put off and forget.

ELLIS W. WHITING.
612 W. Lorain street.

The fallacy that fried foods are indigestible.

The fallacy that proteins (nitrogenous material) of animal origin have something to do with high blood pressure.

The fallacy that meat is more "nourishing" or "strengthening" than cereals, vegetables, cheese or milk.

The fallacy that baked potato is more readily digested than potato cooked in any other way one likes.

The fallacy that something injurious or poisonous is removed from raw cucumbers by soaking them in salt water.

The fallacy that cream or ice cream must not be eaten at the same meal with lobster or other fish—if one likes it.

The fallacy that carbonated water or beverage is harmful to the stomach.

The fallacy that premeditated, predigested pap is "health food."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Stranger Coming

We are expecting a little stranger to come for a long visit, toward the end of December. I was practically raised on Dr. Brady's teachings. Your column was a household institution. (Mrs. E. A. M.)

Answer—Blessings on thee, little woman. Send ten cents coin and stamped envelope (regular size envelope, no miniature stuff) bearing your address, for copy of booklet "Preparing for Maternity."

Personal

Do you answer personal letters? If so, is this the right address? (Miss P. R.)

Answer—Not postcards. Inclose stamped envelope bearing your address, and you will receive a personal answer.

Headache

I feel everlastingly grateful to you for the cure of headaches with which I have suffered for a long while. (Mrs. T. R. W.)

Answer—Happy to hear it. Monograph "Why Have Headache?" available on request. If you inclose stamped envelope bearing your address.

Every Tooth Worth $1000

In view of the well known fact that many middle aged or elderly persons have artificial teeth and seem to maintain good health and reach advanced age, your contention that "every tooth is worth a thousand dollars" falls flat. (E. S. P., D. D. S.)

Answer—All right, Doctor, what is your estimate of the value of a sound tooth in the jaw? May I offer you, and every other member of the dental profession who will ask for it and provide a 1-c stamp envelope bearing his or her address, a complimentary copy of "Save Your Teeth," 70-page No. 1 Little Lesson in the Ways of Health, for which laymen pay twenty-five cents.

Who Pays the Freight?

Kindly send pamphlets or any literature you have on iodine and thyroid gland to Mrs. . . . (O. L.)

Answer—Ask for monograph "Instructions for Taking Iodine Ration" and inclose stamped 3c envelope bearing your address.

Something in Baby's Ear

Our eight months old baby seems to have more wax in his right ear, and objects and resists my efforts to insert cotton to remove it. How should I deal with this? (Mrs. B. H.)

Answer—Leave it alone. Do not try to insert cotton or anything else in the ears. The ear wax is normally present there and serves a good purpose.

Salt-Poor Diet

Brother, cardiac condition, dropsical. Treatment recommended is diet free of salt. Can you give list of foods free of salt? (A. G.)

Answer—Surely the physician who prescribed the salt-poor diet can best advise your brother. 1. Cook should add no salt to food. 2. Patient should add no salt to food. 3. Use only "sweet" (unsalted) butter and unsalted cheese. 4. No sea food; but some fresh water fish may be taken. 5. Fresh meats, but no corned, tinned, smoked meats.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is inclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address: Dr. William Brady, 295 El Camino, South, Beverly Hills, Calif. (Copyright, 1940.)

Landon Favors 'Post-Card' Platform for Republicans

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Topeka, Kas.—Republicans are being urged by former Governor Landon to avoid the usual, windy, detailed campaign platform so dear to old-fashioned political tradition, and to adopt for this year a brief creed or "post-card platform."

Mr. Landon's suggestion, which has met with favor among some party leaders, is prompted by the exceptional crisis which is swiftly changing American opinion almost from day to day. How can the party take a fixed position on details concerning the war and foreign policy at Philadelphia two weeks hence, and be certain its solemn pronouncements will not look silly four months later when the election campaign will be closing?

Only a few weeks ago, Thomas E. Dewey was vowing he would never favor repealing the Johnson act and permitting loans to the Allies. Last winter most Republicans were opposed to lifting the embargo on sale of arms to the Allies. Where are those who recently wanted to make the Republicans the "peace party"? Or those Republicans who were supporting the Ludlow amendments for a referendum on war?

Conditions in the world have made those matters obsolete or beside the point. The illustrations are mine, not Governor Landon's, but they suggest what he has had in mind in counselling against the party trying to freeze its position now, when new situations beyond our control are daily requiring changes in American attitude.

How can the Republican party say it is opposed to use of our troops outside the United States, when developments in Latin America may at any time call for a dispatch of forces?

As Governor Landon and some others in the party see it, it is not cowardice or evasion to leave certain questions wide open in the platform. On the contrary, it is the course of responsible leadership to recognize realities. The chief reality now is that no one can be dogmatic about the future. Every party leader who has thought he had the answers, both as to candidates and as to issues, is well advised to take another look at his hole card before the convention at Philadelphia.

Ordinarily, for instance, there would be strong Republican opposition to giving President Roosevelt power to suspend the anti-trust laws. Now there is considerable pressure for that very thing. Even such an anti-monopolist as Governor Landon favors it. Business men, normally critical of extensions of presidential power, say that they are hampered in national defense work by the fear of anti-trust prosecutions, especially in view of the supreme court decision that the group of oil companies convicted in the Madison trials had violated the anti-trust laws, even though the object of their agreements was price stabilization which had been sought by the government under NRA and under the Ickes oil administration.

Opposition Must Show Sense of Responsibility
Anti-trust laws have been waived in four instances — under the Interstate Commerce commission, the Securities and Exchange commission, the National Industrial Recovery act and the Guffey Coal act. Now the proposal is to waive them where the government decides that to do so would foster defense preparation. Manufacturers need at times to exchange materials or share them with competitors, and in some instances price arrangements are involved which would be technically in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Similarly, a desire is developing that the government establish priorities for manufacturers engaged in defense work. Thus, as a practical

Club Members Make Inspection of Flower Gardens at Waupaca

Waupaca—Waupaca Garden club members turned out Monday afternoon for a tour of gardens. Twenty-seven visited the iris garden of Mrs. Will Ware where more than 100 varieties of iris were in bloom. At the home of Mrs. Rob Holly who has nearly 300 kinds of iris, there was also the wild flower garden with its 500 varieties that proved of exceptional interest. At each stop informal discussions were held. The last stop was at the home of Mrs. William Holden, Wisconsin Veterans' Home. After looking over the garden the members went indoors to hold their regular business meeting. This was followed by tea served by Mrs. Holden.

necessity, numerous exceptions will have to be made to the usual opposition cry against increased presidential powers.

The opposition party will be left in a ludicrously confused position unless it is careful to reserve judgment on many points. It must forego immediate superficial appeals and display a sense of responsibility that will show it is capable of rising to the challenge of this crisis.

What the Landon proposal for a brief, creed-like platform means is that the Republican party would go to the country, not with many detailed answers that might look ridiculous by election time, but with a frank attitude of readiness to meet new situations as events may require, in a spirit of responsibility to the national interests.

There will be a regular meeting of the members of the Royal Neighbors at the village hall Wednesday evening. After the business meeting cards will be played, prizes will be awarded and a lunch will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hartjes entertained at cards at their home Thursday evening. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Row, Sylvester Row and Miss Naomi Row, Seymour; Mr. and Mrs. George Sanderfoot and Mrs. Anna Wirth, Little Chute.

City to Improve Lutz Park Lagoon As Bathing Place

Council Orders Sand for Beach and Employs Lifeguard

The city council last night gave two committees a blanket order to do what is needed at Lutz park lagoon to make it reasonably safe for youngsters to swim there this summer.

Action was the keynote and the recreation committee went right to work and authorized the purchase of from 500 to 800 cubic yards of sand from William Schlender, 1407 N. Bennett street at 55 cents per yard delivered at the park.

Alvin Schabo, an experienced lifeguard, started work Monday morning at the park and the council may employ another man to divide the work, it was indicated last night.

Other improvements probably will be temporary bathhouses for both boys and girls, a boat for the lifeguard and a diving raft for the more experienced swimmers.

Improvements Temporary All these improvements, however, are considered temporary for the council is not neglecting the municipal pool to be built at Eck park. The mayor's special pool committee was in session Monday and listened to engineers and architects outline plans for various types of pools.

Last fall the city spent about $800 to dredge the Lutz lagoon for swimmers. The park was filled and a beach area was tapered down to the water's edge. This area now will be covered with sand.

Mayor Goodland called the special meeting after delegations of children visited him last week to ask just what the city was going to do about the swimming situation.

"One youngster told me his dad would not allow him to swim at Lutz lagoon without supervision," the mayor said. "We ought to give the children a place to bathe with reasonable safety. If we don't we will have drownings and we'll be responsible."

Suggestions for improving the lagoon came from Alderman Bogan who said temporary measures may solve the swimming problem this year. Alderman Roemer suggested two life guards, a roped area for swimmers and a boat for the lifeguard and told the council Lutz lagoon probably would be used for swimming even when Appleton has an artificial pool.

Alderman Kelly cast a lone vote against improving the lagoon.

Will Widen Street The council confirmed its new policy, established at its last meeting, to make all streets in the city at least 32 feet wide by voting unanimously to widen Mueller street to 32 feet. A petition against widening the street brought the action.

In an informal hearing last night, however, it developed that most of the property owners on Mueller street would be satisfied with a 32 foot width and signed the petition "because they didn't want to cause trouble in the neighborhood."

Applications of the Glendale and Whispering Pines Sanitary districts, town of Grand Chute, for permission to use Appleton sewerage and disposal facilities was referred to the council for study.

Representatives of the districts informally presented their sewerage plans. The Glendale district lies north of Nichols street and the Whispering Pines district, north of Wisconsin avenue and east of Meade street.

Specifications for soil-cement stabilized pavements were adopted by the council after a technical explanation from Lloyd M. Schindler, city engineer.

Second Candidate For Sheriff Enters Race on GOP Ticket

Walter F. Scherck, 131 S. Oneida street, yesterday became the second candidate for the sheriff's office in the fall election. He secured nomination papers at the office of John E. Hantschel, Outagamie county clerk. Scherck will run on the Republican ticket. Frank Hugenberg, Kaukauna, recently took out nomination papers for the office on the Progressive ticket.

Two other candidates for county offices secured nomination papers yesterday. They are Warren P. Smith, 539 N. Center street, candidate for treasurer on the Progressive ticket, and George C. Egan, 305 W. Wisconsin avenue, Kaukauna, candidate for state senator on the Progressive ticket.

FAILS TO STOP

Albert Gutschow, route 3, Appleton, pleaded guilty of failing to stop for an arterial in the town of Grand Chute and was fined $5 and costs by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon. County police made the arrest.

DENIES CHARGE

John Schneider, Seymour, pleaded not guilty of keeping a junk yard in the city of Seymour without a license when he appeared before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. Trial was set for June 18 and he was released under bond of $200.

Wednesday Will be Warmer, Forecast

Cloudy Tonight, Bureau Says: Thermometer at 64 This Afternoon

Warmer weather Wednesday in Appleton and vicinity was forecast by the Milwaukee bureau today. Temperatures were cool in the city today, but there was nothing to complain about. The mercury stood at 64 degrees at 12.30 this afternoon. Skies were cloudy but the sun spent a good share of its time in the open. The cloudiness will continue tonight.

For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 83 and the lowest 52, according to Wisconsin Michigan Power company charts. The maximum was at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and the minimum at 5 o'clock this morning.

Phoenix, Ariz., with 105, and Cheyenne, Wyo., with 88, stood at the top and bottom of the nation's thermometer yesterday.

THE WEATHER

Forecast for Wisconsin Partly cloudy to cloudy tonight and Wednesday, not so cool in the northwest tonight; somewhat warmer Wednesday.

General Weather Conditions Since yesterday morning showers have occurred over the Atlantic coastal states, the Ohio valley, the Great Lakes region, the central plains states, the Mississippi valley, and sections of the Gulf states. Fair weather prevails from the Mississippi valley to the Pacific coast.

It is considerably cooler this morning over the Great Lakes region, the central plains states and middle Mississippi valley, while temperatures are somewhat higher over the upper Mississippi valley.

Partly cloudy to cloudy weather is expected in this section during the next 24 hours with somewhat warmer temperatures Wednesday.

Dr. S. J. Kloehn of Appleton was elected vice president of the Fox River Valley Dental society yesterday as 100 delegates closed a 2-day convention at Oshkosh.

Dr. L. J. Patterson of Green Bay was named president. Dr. W. J. Landstorm of Neenah was reelected secretary-treasurer and Dr. George F. Franta, Oshkosh, and Dr. A. E. McCarthy, Fond du Lac, were named members of the executive council for 3-year terms.

State Teachers to Be Host to Annual Convention of NEA

For the first time since 1919 the teachers of Wisconsin will be hosts to the National Education association, holding its annual summer meeting at Milwaukee June 30 to July 4. More than 10,000 teachers from all parts of the country are expected to attend.

Laura Utery, Neenah, is one of the official delegates who will represent the Wisconsin Education association. Wisconsin speakers on the program include E. G. Doudna, secretary of the board of normal school regents; Clarence Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin; William Rasche, director of the Milwaukee Vocational school; and Hugh S. Bonar, Manitowoc superintendent of schools.

Conferences and discussions directed by national leaders, such as United States Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker, will highlight the 5-day program. One session, devoted to the national scene, will feature appearances by representatives of the major political parties who will discuss national political and economic questions.

Warns Taxpayers to Cut Parkway Shrubs

Harold Jerke, city forester, today reminded property owners of the city ordinance which limits the height of shrubbery in parkways at intersections to three feet.

Under the ordinance the city has the right to cut shrubs over three feet within 50 feet of an intersection if property owners do not. The penalty for not cutting the shrubs to that height is a fine of $1 to $25 or from 3 to 30 days in jail.

Births

A daughter was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith 207 E. Fremont street, at St. Elizabeth hospital.

A son was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Wagkoski, 1026 Third street, Menasha, at St. Elizabeth hospital.

Driver Escapes With Bruises in Accident

Leroy Krueger, 19, 1713 S. Oneida street, escaped with minor bruises when he lost control of his car and it went off Highway 43 two miles west of Greenville about 12.30 this morning and broke a pole. The car was wrecked.

Blankenburg and Freude are State A. A. L. Officers

600 Attend Convention of Wisconsin Federation At Kenosha

A. H. Blankenburg, Appleton, was reelected president of the Wisconsin Federation of the Aid Association for Lutherans at the convention in Kenosha Saturday.

Other officers are Ed Schmidt, Sheboygan, vice president; Louis Freude, Appleton, secretary-treasurer; Charles Fischer and A. G. Nickel, Milwaukee, executive committee members.

Alex O. Benz, national president of the A. A. L., was the principal speaker at the closing convention banquet Saturday evening. He told the delegates that "at the moment we are burning to express our devotion to our country."

"Overnight our way of living has become inexpressibly precious. We wonder why we did not regard it more highly yesterday. We are determined henceforth to use every resource to protect it."

City Manager Harold C. Laughlin of Kenosha welcomed the 600 delegates and visitors Saturday morning, at which session President Benz also spoke. At the business session in the afternoon, Shawano was chosen as the 1941 convention city.

The Rev. C. Buenger of Kenosha spoke at the convention banquet, pointing to the rapid rise of the A. A. L. in its 38-year career.

Applications for Licenses Must be Filed by Wednesday

Tavernkeepers have until Wednesday to file their applications for licenses to operate in the city, according to E. E. Sager, city clerk. After tomorrow the advertising fee will be raised from $1.50 to $3.25 to permit special advertising of applications received after the deadline Sager said.

License requests will be considered by the city council's license committee Monday evening and the report will be submitted to the council Wednesday evening so that licenses will be ready by July 1 when present permits expire. Applications also should be filed for new tax, cigar, all types of beer and liquor, milk operators, junk dealers, theater and bowling alley permits. All old licenses expire on July 1.

St. Mary Pupils Have Picnic at Pierce Park

Pupils of St. Mary Parochial school yesterday filled Pierce park in the all-school picnic marking the end of school activities for the term. Children played games, ran races and ate a picnic dinner at noon. The eighth grade softball team lost to Kimberly in an afternoon game but has scheduled another to get even. The school's junior choir will picnic at the park Wednesday.

Harvey Pierre Post Will Make Bid for 1941 V.F.W. Parley

The 1941 state encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will be in Appleton, if the Harvey Pierre post has anything to say about it.

The post last night developed plans for the campaign it will wage at the state gathering in Sheboygan to bring the veterans to this city a year hence. The Sheboygan convention opens June 19 and will continue through June 23, with a large delegation from the Appleton post ready to go.

The post initiated six new members at last night's meeting in Eagles hall. The degree team will travel to Manitowoc Wednesday night to induct new members for the V. F. W. post in that city.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Application for marriage licenses has been made at the office of John E. Hantschel, Outagamie county clerk, by Reuben Kleinsmith, route 1, Oneida, and Josie Ziegenbein, Seymour; Carl Given, Appleton, and Janette LaFond, Appleton; Berold DeBruin, Little Chute, and Bernice Mayer, Appleton; J. Daniel Butler, Appleton, and Alyce Sanderson, LaCrosse; Raymond DeBruin, Kaukauna, and Almina Arnoldussen, Kaukauna.

Frank Coleman, government meteorologist at Milwaukee, said the halo was a reflection of light through ice crystals which compose clouds. Light is often broken up into colors to give the rainbow effect, and the phenomenon occurs frequently, he said.

see it in the offing. But we see all manner of possibilities in the western hemisphere."

General Marshall, who recently declared manpower was the army's "tragic shortage" at the moment, said the proposed $5,000 additional enlisted men would include 55,000 ground troops and 40,000 for the air corps. He said the new ground troops would give the army another infantry division, another mechanized division, three artillery regiments, seven anti-aircraft gun battalions, nine reconnaissance troops, 17 anti-tank companies and nine harbor defense batteries.

Of the bill's total, the army would get $777,502,047 in direct appropriations and $254,176,761 in contract authorization, for which funds would have to be appropriated later. The navy's share would be $304,963,170 in cash and $63,560,000 in contract authorization.

Although the bill was $319,731,898 above President Roosevelt's budget recommendations, chiefly on account of the increase to build the regular army up to an authorized strength of 375,000 enlisted men, the committee cut out $2,200,000 which the chief executive requested. This included $1,900,000 for establishment of a naval seaplane base on Canton island in the southern Pacific and $300,000 to start construction of three dirigibles.

Representative Tinkham (R-Mass.) protested against the Canton island appropriation, contending the agreement by which Britain and the United States jointly control the island constituted a secret military alliance. Committee members said they had decided to ask the state department about them.

Army Requirements The army's share of the funds would include $339,800,000 for the 3,000 new planes, their equipment, armament and ammunition; $53,440,000 for anti-aircraft artillery and ammunition; $99,334,000 for mounted guns tanks, armored carriers, ammunition and other equipment; $23,700,000 for research and development in the air corps, signal service and ordnance department.

A separate $200,000,000 fund solely for expediting construction of munitions also was recommended by the committee for expenditure subject to approval of the defense council and the president.

In addition to funds for the 66 new combat ships, the navy would get funds to recommission 35 destroyers and 36 submarines which would place in operation all existing combatant naval tonnage. It would also get $61,437,400 to complete manufacture of 400 new quadruple mounts and 31-inch anti-aircraft guns and $8,360,000 to increase the anti-aircraft defenses of all battleships, cruisers and aircraft carriers. Another $6,000,000 was included.

Swimming Pool Plans Outlined

Seven Firms Offer Various Types of Tanks To Committee

Engineers and architects Monday informally outlined plans for various types of swimming pools before the mayor's special pool committee in city hall.

Plans were offered by Orbison and Orbison, consulting engineers, Appleton; Lytle and Smith, consulting engineers, Appleton; Kaufmann and Brandt, architects, Appleton; Raymond N. LeVee, architect, Appleton; Hunter Swimming Pool, Inc., Indianapolis, Ind.; Jerry Donohue Engineering company, Chicago; and Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel company, Chicago.

After listening to the various ideas, the committee decided to visit Racine and Kohono, Ind., to see Hunter pools built recently.

Present at the meeting were Mayor Goodland, H. P. Hoeffel, E. E. Sager, William Buchanan, E. B. Rachow, Dale Fox, Mrs. R. M. Acherson, Martin Unmuth, Louis Weber, and Aldermen Franzke, VandeHeyden, Brautigam, Bogan and Keller.

Marston Bros. Given Contract for Gasoline

The county highway committee yesterday awarded a contract to the Marston Bros. company to furnish two tankcars of gasoline at 731 cents per gallon. Six bids were considered. L. L. Doerflinger was given a contract to furnish a tankcar of fuel oil at .0574 cents per gallon.

Bills including $9,146.72 for labor and $718.49 for materials were allowed by the committee.

Keeps Tavern Open After Hours: Fined

Jake Ashauer, 620 S. State street, pleaded guilty of keeping his tavern open after hours and was fined $25 and costs by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon. City police made the arrest.

3 Aircraft Carriers

The 66 new ships to be started include three aircraft carriers, 12 cruisers, 22 submarines and 30 destroyers. This would mean a total of 160 combat vessels under construction.

A special $25,000,000 contractual authority was included for the navy as an emergency fund for the rental acquisition and conversion of small craft "should conditions so develop that it would be necessary for the navy to patrol the coast, guard harbor entrances, escort coastal shipping or sweep mines."

The bill also carried $60,300,000 for a far-flung system of new naval air bases and expansion of others. The coast guard would get $10,721,916 to provide for 2,500 additional men and equip its vessels with depth charges, new guns, searchlights and listening devices for detection of submarines.

Constitution Has Provided Against Sudden Invasion

Military Powers Can be Invoked Without Formal Declaration of War

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Would the United States government be able to fight against a "blitzkrieg" type of attack without a formal declaration of war? Would it be necessary for congress to be assembled to declare a war resolution while enemy airplanes might be bombing either American cities or what Senator Vandenberg has significantly referred to as "outposts" of American defense?

These questions are pertinent now because wars are not declared in a formal sense, but happen overnight. Democracies are supposed to be at a disadvantage because they cannot move as quickly as dictatorships, but a close reading of the constitution of the United States will reveal that our forefathers wisely provided for just such a contingency as may arise this summer or this autumn or perhaps in the coming years of unsettled world conditions.

It is not generally realized, but there are at least two places in the constitution where military powers can be invoked without the necessity of a formal declaration of war. Section eight of article one says:

"The congress shall have power . . . to provide for calling the militia to execute the laws of the union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions."

Common Defense

In another part of the same section, the constitution says: "The congress shall have power . . . to provide for the common defense . . . to raise and support armies . . . to provide and maintain a navy."

These provisions mean that congress, as already requested by the president, may provide in advance for the summoning of the militia to active service. Another section of the constitution says:

"The president shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several states when called into the actual service of the United States."

Thus the United States may never declare war on Germany or enter into a formal alliance with the allies, but may proceed on the theory of repelling invasions. There is pending, for example, in congress a resolution which sets forth that any attempt by a non-American power to occupy territory not now held by such a power in the western hemisphere would be an attack on America's vital interests. Once this resolution is passed, the commander-in-chief of the army and navy and militia could proceed to repel any invasion or attack on our interests. Congress in effect will have authorized in advance any military measures that might be necessary to ward off attack.

It is important for these points to be made known because it would be most unfortunate if when the United States did take military or naval precautions, there were to arise a criticism that America was being placed into war without a vote of the congress.

British Fleet

The emergencies that may arise requiring quick action and not a prolonged debate in the senate where filibustering by a minority even for two days might imperil America's security can be met by a grant of congressional power at this time. If the allies are defeated and the British fleet attaches itself to the Canadian government overnight, the nazis may be demanding under penalty of reprisals against civilians in Britain that the fleet be surrendered. Canada cannot financially support the British fleet or give it adequate bases and docking facilities. The United States might have to "seize" the British fleet overnight and challenge the nazis to come over and get it in America waters. All sorts of possibilities of greater difficulties and it has always been at that moment that she has astonished the entire world."

The tanks reported in the Paris region were said to have penetrated the French lines in isolated raids.

While to the northeast the Germans pushed across World War battlefields and approached the Marne and Chateau-Thierry, on the west they pushed beyond the 1914 line.

The French high command's communique last night acknowledged that the Germans had crossed the Seine at certain lower points.

"From the sea to the Oise," said the communique, "the enemy has increased his pressure between the route from Amiens to Rouen and from Amiens to Vernon, as far as the lower Seine at certain points where some elements have crossed the river."

"The enemy is held everywhere by vigorous counter-attacks."

Rouen is 70 miles west of Paris on the Seine and Vernon is 40 miles from the capital.

The line north of Paris ran through the central sector of the Oise valley. After taking heavy losses here, the Germans were holding back their infantry and sending an invasion of American waters may arise, and for these the executive branch of the government will possess the necessary power to act quickly if congress has passed a resolution defining American interests and if authority to call the militia into active service already has been granted.

Again and again in past history, the president of the United States has used armed forces either to land marines or troops on foreign soil. President Wilson did not ask congress for authority before he ordered the seizure of Vera Cruz in 1914 nor later when he ordered the Pershing expedition into Mexico as a reprisal against a border raid by Villa. Broad powers exist in the executive branch of the government to act quickly when there is no time for debate or a formal war resolution. But President Roosevelt is wisely asking for authority to summon the militia and Secretary Hull has approved the Bloom resolution which defies by action of congress the Monroe doctrine as a basic American area embraced within the term national defense.

TRACY GETS D.D.A. FROM RIPON

It was "Doctor" Spencer Tracy at Ripon, Wis., after President Evans (left) of Ripon College awarded the famous Hollywood actor the honorary degree of Doctor of Dramatic Arts. Signs bearing the legend "Welcome Spence" hung in the streets as the former college boy returned to the commencement to receive the degree. Tracy formerly lived in Milwaukee.

diver bombers out to blast away the French resistance. French reports said

Eastward, where the nazis had crossed the Aisne river, three columns fanned out from Soissons through La Ferté Milon and Le Fere on Tardenois and toward Fismes. These units were just north of Chateau-Thierry and the Marne, where the Germans were stopped in 1918 as Americans fought alongside the French.

At the extreme east of the active line the French were fighting back in the Aronne district.

In withdrawing from Paris the government followed a procedure adopted during the World War. The government moved to Bordeaux on Sept. 3, 1914, and remained there until the following Dec. 11, after the German threat to take the capital appeared ended.

The French news agency, Havas, also suspended its Paris operations last night and foreign news agencies moved in whole or part. Newspapers already had ceased to appear, and much of the population, normally 3,000,000, had left.

The capital's broad boulevards were almost empty of automobiles. The usual crowds had changed to occasional passersby. Armed policemen and little groups of dirty, weary families fleeing from the northern war area were about all to be seen in the streets.

Yet, during the early night last night, cafe orchestras played, the inevitable drinkers sat at cafe terraces and in some of the shady little squares children played and women chatted and knitted and watched the fountains.

There were many here who apparently want to stick to their beloved capital no matter what happens.

time, we will harness and speed up the use of those resources in order that we ourselves in the Americas may have equipment and training equal to the task of any emergency and every defense."

The reaction of official Washington was that President Roosevelt had, in effect, served notice on the world that the United States was shifting its role of neutrality to one of non-belligerence.

Members of congress who heard the president were either enthusiastic in their approval or apprehensive that the speech increased the danger of the nation being drawn into the war. Most of those who offered comments endorsed the stand Mr. Roosevelt took, but there were some who, like Representative Rogers (R-Mass.), said "the speech sounded like a prelude to a declaration of war."

Two aspirants for the Republican presidential nomination were critical in their appraisal. Frank Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher, called the address "an inflammatory utterance . . . likely to promote our getting into the war." Thomas E. Dewey, New York prosecutor said "the words may be the words of a neutral but the voice is the voice of a belligerent."

Will Speed Plans

Mr. Roosevelt made it plain that he intended to drive forward with all energy toward the win objectives of full material aid to the allies and a formidably-armed America.

"All roads leading to the accomplishment of these objectives must be kept clear of obstructions," he asserted.

"We will not slow down or detour."

"Signs and signals call for speed—full speed ahead."

"The program unfolds swiftly and into that program will fit the responsibility and the opportunity of every man and woman in the land to preserve our heritage in days of peril."

"I call for effort, courage, sacrifice, devotion. Granting the love of freedom, all these are possible."

"And the love of freedom is still fierce, still steady in the nation today."

Speaks Indoors

The president traveled to Charlottesville in a special train after deciding to deliver the address barely a dozen hours before Premier Mussolini announced that Italy was entering the war. Some of the utterances were recast at the last minute because of Italy's step.

Rain forced the graduation exercises indoors, and Mr. Roosevelt, wearing academic cap and gown, spoke in the campus gymnasium—erected as a memorial to the university's World War dead.

War Advocates Asked To Answer Questions

Des Moines, Iowa — (AP) — Frank Miles, editor of the Iowa Legionnaire, has sent letters to the 30 American business and professional men who urged this country's entrance into the war on the side of the allies, asking:

"What fighting did you do in the last war?"

Miles' letter continued, in part: "Are you now of an age and of physical and mental fitness which would enable you to do military service?"

"If you could not be in our armed forces, how many of your own sons would be?"

"If we go to war now, what would you have our men fight with?"

speech, the chief executive returned at once to Washington where he issued the neutrality proclamations late in the evening.

The proclamations, implemented by state department orders, applied the "cash and carry," no-credit provisions to Italy, prohibited American citizens from traveling in Italian vessels, and banned the raising of funds for Italy here without a license.

clared today as the Germans raced southward to slice France in half and join Italian forces.

Nazi sources estimated that the armies contained between 400,000 and 500,000 men.

"This estimate, however, seemed extremely high, since the whole mobilized strength of the French nation was believed to be not much more than 5,000,000 men and France was understood to have only about 1,500,000 men in the great battle of France."

A new "sack" is being thrown around Dieppe by a German thrust southward along the English channel, informed sources said, and allied troops trapped in it will be treated as were the encircled armies in Flanders.

The exact location of the two armies reported destroyed was not given but the high command communique today said large sections of the allies had been cut off and faced with destruction.

connections between the individual French army corps, the spokesman declared.

The German air force was said to be lending extensive aid to the ground forces with a view to forcing a decision as quickly as possible.

England also is being kept busy by the nazi air force, the spokesman said, for "psychological reasons."

Jubilant over the success of the German drive toward Paris and Italy's entrance into the war, nazi leaders boldly proclaimed that France's fate is sealed.

Official circles, which described the position of the French capital as "precarious," remained silent about the war moves of Premier Mussolini, but it was generally expected he would strike a swift blow against France's southern frontier.

Robert Sager, Letha Hoh Lead Grand March as School Band Holds Party at Country Club

LED by Robert Sager, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Sager, 620 E. North street, and Miss Letha Hoh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hoh, route 1, Appleton, who were elected by their fellow students as the outstanding senior boy and girl of Appleton High school band this year, the band members and their guests paraded in a grand march following a dinner Monday night at Riverview Country club. The occasion was the annual spring formal dinner-dance for the band which was in the nature of a farewell for the senior members. About 60 persons were present.

Medal and band pins won by individuals in the tournaments during the last year were awarded during the dinner. Ralph Buesing acted as master of ceremonies. E. C. Moore, band director, showed movies of the band in action and also of a trip west which he took last year. Recordings made by the band were played for the audience. Dancing followed, several novelty numbers being introduced.

Chaperons and guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Dettman, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hoh, E. E. Thomas and Mrs. E. E. Sager. The arrangements committee consisted of Miss Betty Williamson, chairman; Robert Wilch, William Cherkasky, Roman Schmid, Miss Lois Schreiter and Miss Nancy McKee.

WE KNOW WHAT HE WANTS FOR DAD'S DAY

Because he hates to appear sentimental he probably says, "Forget it!" — when you ask him what he wants. But he can't fool us! You see, he probably buys most of his jewelry here as so many Appleton fathers do... and we've built up our business and reputation by supplying him with just the things he likes. You can depend upon this: the gifts you buy for him at Marx' are what he'd choose for himself!

He'll like our Father's Day Gift Wrappings, too!

Introducing Your Mailman

Do you know the mailman on your route? Every day, rain or shine, in summer and in winter, he stops at your home, providing a service that has grown to be essential as electric lights or the telephone. But few of the mailmen's "customers" know his name or where he lives or what manner of man he is. The Post-Crescent is introducing the carriers to their public so that readers may know the men who serve them so faithfully.

Robert G. Olson, 721 S. Story street . . . A carrier in Appleton 16 years, he was born in Marinette . . . Left Marinette when he was 17 and spent four years in the west . . . Returned to enter service in the world war . . . Served with the 127th infantry of the 32nd division.

He worked as a machinist at the Valley Iron Works about five years before becoming a letter carrier . . . Married and the father of four children . . . Was sergeant in Company I during the World war, a company made up of men from Marinette and Superior . . . Rates football as his favorite sport . . . Enjoys gardening.

63 Students Enroll At Training School For Summer Session

Kaukauna—Summer school for high school students has begun at Outagamie Rural Normal school, with 63 enrolled, it was reported this morning. Further registrations will be accepted at the school this week.

Courses offered are English, world and American history, algebra and geometry. Teachers are Miss Borg-hild Anderson, Appleton, and Miss Hazel Thatcher and Paul E. Little, Kaukauna. Classes meet six days a week from 8 to 12, while the term last five weeks.

Kaukauna Mayor Names June as 'Dairy Month'

Kaukauna—Mayor William J. Gantner has issued a statement proclaiming June as "Dairy Month," urging all citizens of Kaukauna and the surrounding rural area to help promote the objectives of this industry and the city's sesquicentennial celebration.

The sesquicentennial committee will hold its "Dairy day," program here June 20. University of Wisconsin professors will be in charge.

40 Per Cent Tax Bill Must be Paid by July 1

Kaukauna—Kaukauna taxpayers who are paying their assessments on the 60-40 plan are reminded by Mrs. Mary Hooyman, city treasurer, that the 40 per cent is to be paid by July 1. A penalty of eight-tenths of one per cent per month is assessed if the payment is not made. About one-third of the city's taxpayers are included under this plan, Mrs. Hooyman said.

Mother of Kaukauna Resident Succumbs

Kaukauna—Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. William Huven, 76, Monico, Wis., mother of Mrs. Howard Canham of this city, and of Mrs. Anthony Kuehl, Neenah. Funeral services for Mrs. Huven, who died Saturday afternoon, were held this morning at Monico.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Kappells Favored For Pennant After Victory Over Haas

Tavern Squad Comes From Behind to Snare 5 to 2 Win

Kaukauna—With a 5 to 2 victory over Haas Hardware last night, Kappell Taverns loom up as the team to beat in city league play. Tonight league play will continue with Holy Cross CYO meeting Combined Locks at 8 o'clock on the library diamond.

Haas Hardware started with a rush last night, Art Koehne and Bill McCormick, the first and third batters, smashing home runs, but from there on the best the Hardware could do were three singles. Earl Alger pitched all the way for the winners, giving 5 hits and striking out 3. Earl Mollet, on the mound for the losers, gave only four hits and fanned 3.

The second inning saw Kappell's overcome the Haas lead with a four run rally. Walks to Busse and Gertz meant two runs when Alger tripled them home. Nettekoven walked and Alger scored when O. Alger singled. Nettekoven came home with the fourth run on Vils hit. In the third Schuler walked, went to second on a passed ball, third on Martin's out and home on Busse's hit.

Two Men Fined for Traffic Violations

Kimberly—Two motorists appeared before Justice Gustave Hanges over the weekend and were fined for traffic violations. Bernard Hermens, Little Chute, paid $5 and costs for speeding Friday, and Lawrence De Groot, Combined Locks, paid $1 and costs for illegal parking Saturday. Both men were arrested by Chief of Police John Bernady.

City Has 20 Traffic Accidents During May

With a total of 20 traffic accidents, 1 killed and 10 hurt, the May traffic record for the city compares unfavorably to May of last year when 21 accidents with 8 hurt were reported. In the first five months of this year 113 accidents with 3 killed and 34 hurt were recorded as against 91 accidents, 2 killed and 22 injured for the same period last year.

Outstanding bills and obligations are paid twice a year in China Settlement days fall on the lunar New Year, in January or February, and again six months later.

Goetzman Is Elected New Head of Kaukauna Knights of Columbus

Kaukauna—C. P. Goetzman was elected grand knight last night, succeeding Al A. Hartzheim, as Knights of Columbus met at K. C. hall. Other officers chosen were George R. Greenwood, deputy grand knight; James McFadden, chancellor; David Hartjes, recording secretary; Herman Maes, treasurer; Joseph Schmidt, warden; Paul Steinhoff, advocate; Philip Hartzheim, inside guard; Lawrence Verhagen, outside guard; John G. Janzen, trustee. Three directors of the K. C. building association were elected, Robert Baker, Joseph Doerfler and Henry Timmers.

William Brown entertained with his minstrel show, while Nick Coonen, route 3, Kaukauna, received the special prize. The group will hold a special meeting at 8:15 tonight to act on first degree applications.

Births Top Deaths at Kaukauna During May

Kaukauna—Births led deaths in Kaukauna during May, 12 to 8, according to a report by Dr. C. D. Boyd, city health officer. Dr. Boyd reported 4 marriages. There were 30 cases of measles.

Begin Sewer Project In Armstrong's Plat

Kaukauna—City relief workers yesterday began digging sewers in Armstrong's plat, W. Wisconsin avenue. The improvement was ordered begun at the council's last meeting, although the plat was accepted last year.

The council promised Servaes first consideration when a vacancy arose. Arnold VanderLoop went out of his Wisconsin avenue tavern, but the business was taken over by Harold J. Verkuilen, 173 W. Wisconsin avenue. Mayor Gantner advised Servaes to apply for a license this year.

The city law provides tavern operators must own the premises or live in the city one year before getting a license. The city assessment roll shows Verkuilen has purchased the Hopfensperger property, Brenzel said.

on propositions of industrialists who propose to locate here" has been called for 7 o'clock tonight by Mayor William J. Gantner. Possible purchases or trades of property to afford locations will be discussed.

At the June 4 council meeting Gantner said two industries might locate here. Accommodations for them were limited, it was brought out. Officials of the firms interested were to visit Kaukauna and outline their needs to city officials.

Public Favors Registration Of All Aliens, Survey Shows

By Institute of Public Opinion Princeton, N. J.—If it were left to the average American, every person living in the United States today who is not a citizen of this country would be required to register with the government, according to a overwhelming sentiment in a nationwide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

At the present time, non-citizens are free to come and go within the United States as they please. Under Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, the department of justice has asked congress to require every non-citizen to register with the government and to notify the authorities whenever he changed his address.

Voters in the Institute survey were 19 to 1 in favor of such a proposal. The Institute asked a cross-section of men and women in all parts of the United States: Should all people who are not United States citizens be required to register with the government?

The replies were:
Favor Registration ..... 95%
Oppose Registration ..... 5%
One person in twenty (only 5%) said he was undecided or without an opinion on the question.

The survey found no evidence of an "alien hysteria" among the voters. On the contrary, their comments indicated time and again that "we merely ought to know who our aliens are" and that "we ought to keep our eyes open."

Voters frequently declare that there will be much less chance of "fifth-column" activities in America if the government keeps tabs on the more than 3,600,000 individuals here who have never sworn allegiance to the United States.

The largest single groups of non-citizens in the United States today, according to the figures of the United States Immigration Service, are the Italians, with approximately 700,000, the Poles, numbering about 500,000, and the Germans, with about 365,000.

In today's survey the Institute found the greatest demand for registration of non-citizens in the South and West. The vote by sections was:

Section	Yes	No
New England	93%	7%
Mid-Atlantic	95	5
East Central	95	5
West Central	94	6
South	98	2
West	97	3

Lawn Party Is Given By Ralph Lendved at Clintonville Home

Clintonville—Nearly fifty persons were entertained at a lawn party given by Ralph Lendved at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Lendved, Sunday evening. Those present were members of the Methodist Epworth league and invited guests. Following an outdoor supper, a variety of games were played on the lawn. These were in charge of Dr. Lewis Thomas, director of the Epworth league, and the Rev. W. H. Wiese, Monday marked Ralph Lendved's fifteenth birthday anniversary.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Wiese and daughter Pearl left Monday for Brillion, where they will spend this week at the Methodist camp meeting.

A group of Clintonville women is planning to attend a 1 o'clock luncheon at Shalagoco golf club near Shawano Wednesday. A golf tournament will take place in the afternoon.

Women of Riverside club will hold their annual "guest day" on Thursday afternoon at the local course.

A shed in the rear of the Albert Schmidt residence on Bennett street was destroyed by fire at about 9 o'clock Sunday evening. The blaze had gained considerable headway before the department was summoned. The damage amounted to less than $50.

Legion Posts of County to Meet Thursday Evening at Clintonville

Clintonville—A county meeting of American Legion posts will be held in this city at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. Arrangements have been made for the county gathering by County Council Commander Bert Harper. Among the matters to be considered will be the selection of boys to go to Delafield to attend the Badger State Boys' Camp.

Gerald Hurley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hurley of this city, will be a member of the graduation class at Marquette university at the annual commencement exercises to be held Wednesday evening. Hurley, who completed a course in journalism was active in a number of campus organizations. During his senior year he was vice president of the Marquette chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity and was recently co-chairman of the annual journalism jamboree in Milwaukee. For two years he has been a staff member of the Marquette Tribune, weekly student publication, and also belonged to the Marquette Press club. He will receive the degree of bachelor of philosophy.

Miss Kathleen Stanley, who taught at Oconomowoc has arrived home to spend the summer months with her mother, Mrs. C. B. Stanley.

Mrs. Jack Hart of Conover spent the weekend here with her daughter Mrs. Frank Hamilton and family and with her father, G. A. Wurl.

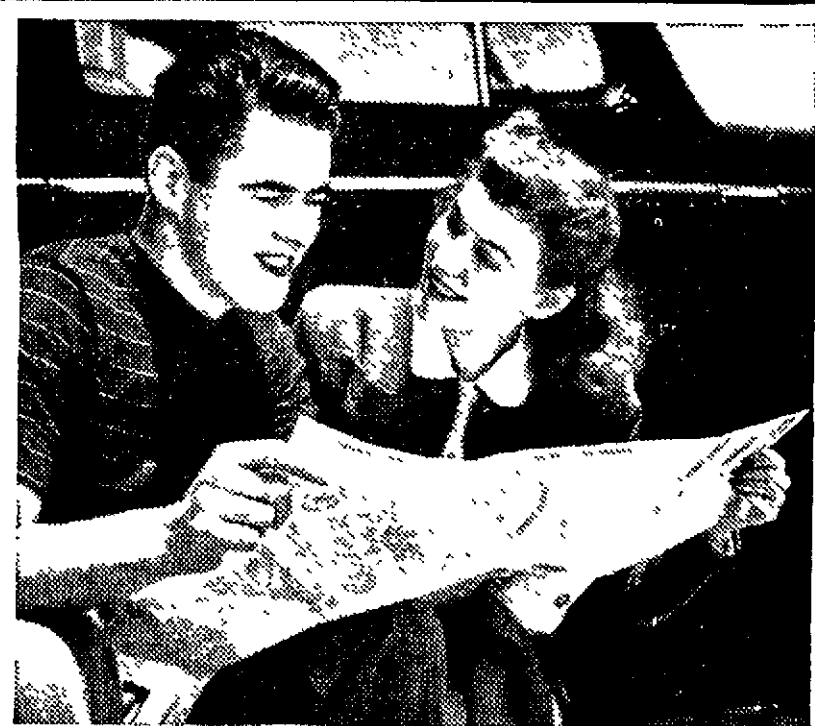

The circulation department of the Appleton Post-Crescent is represented in Clintonville by James Bohr, 46 Main street. Orders for subscriptions may be left with him. Subscribers missed by carriers should call Mr. Bohr telephone 5571, before 7 p. m.

CASEY JONES SHOWS HORSESHOE PITCHERS HOW IT'S DONE

Casey Jones, Waukesha, state horseshoe pitching champion and runnerup for national honors a year ago, thrilled about 1,000 persons last night at Pleasanton park as he staged a stunt demonstration and tossed ringers with uncanny accuracy. In one match he was scheduled to oppose valley sharpshooters, when Casey had 112 points, the valley talent had accumulated only 11. The valley tossers were Otto Larson, Neenah, Len Henstedt, Don Reischel, Don Jamlin and Milt Leininger. Jones started with pairs of ringers but about the ninth frame he ratted off six straight innings of double ringers. In another match he played two valley pitchers, Davis and Henstedt and beat them, 25 to 8, in nine innings.

Dodgers Back In First Place

Defeat Pittsburgh Pirates, 8 to 7, While Cincinnati Is Idle

BY JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

THE major league pennant races are tighter than a new pair of shoes and just as fancy to look at. But these don't seem to be going anywhere.

The National League struggle today is right back in the complicated spot it got into on May 27, which isn't getting along very fast toward the business of determining a champion.

Brooklyn's baffling Dodgers pushed past the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7 yesterday and into first place in the percentage standings of the senior circuit by a single point. They have won 29 games and lost 13 for 680. The Cincinnati Reds, who were idle yesterday, have won 31 games and lost 14 for a .689 percentage.

What's more the Reds still are half a game in front on won-lost reckoning. This is the tangle these same clubs were in a couple of weeks ago.

The American league squabble is nearly as bad, the Boston Red Sox holding only a small percentage margin over the Cleveland Indians with whom they are even in games won and lost. The Detroit Tigers are only a single game behind and the fourth place New York Yankees three.

Browns Spank Nats

The status quo of the junior circuit leaders was preserved by the weatherman yesterday. In the only game that was played, the St. Louis Browns spanked the Washington Senators 7-4 and moved into sixth place in the standings. Each team made ten hits, but the Senators committed two errors behind Sid Hudson. The Browns bunched two runs in the first and five more in the seventh, after which the four Washingtoners crowded into the last of the seventh were a small threat.

The two games played in the National League were hitting exhibitions. In the Brooklyn-Pittsburgh melee 17 players saw service for each team, five pitchers and two catchers included for each. The Dodgers opened with three runs and the Pirates came back with three in the second. Brooklyn had two two-run innings thereafter and Pittsburgh clustered four runs in one. But finally Babe Phelps tripped with one on in the eighth for the payoff.

There were 25 hits in this game and 28 in the one at St. Louis in which the Boston Bees crushed the Cardinals 12-2. The difference was that the Bees owned 21 of the total of 28 while Lefty Joe Sullivan kept the Redbirds effectively caged. One of the seven hits he gave up was the seventeenth home run of the year for Johnny Mize.

Billy Southworth was present at the game, but let Coach Mike Gonzales run the Cards, saying he would take charge at the night game tonight.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By the Associated Press

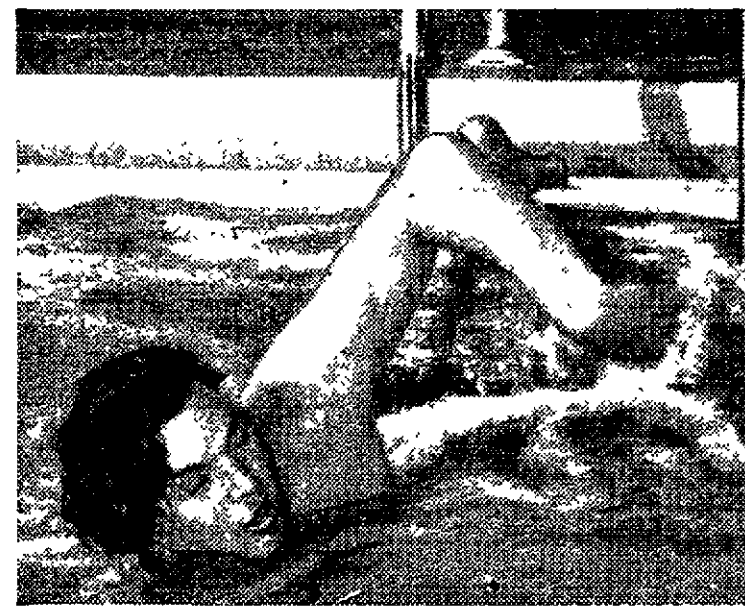

Bab Phelps, Dodgers — Made three hits in four chances, one of them a triple that scored winning run in eighth against Pirates.

Joe Sullivan, Bees — Held Cardinals helpless on seven hits.

George McQuinn, Browns — Touched off five-run rally with triple to help beat Senators.

Get in the Swim

By JOHNNY WEISSMULLER
Former World Speed Champion

(Fourth In A Series)

Having mastered the dog paddle, start next with whatever stroke appeals to you most, such as the sidestroke or the crawl. In the sidestroke, lie on either side, though the right side is preferable for most people. The arm stroke is an alternate pull, with neither hand breaking water. The scissor kick is used, the legs drawn up and then kicked out in a scissors movement, with the kick made on the downward pull of the upper arm, as the under arm is reached forward.

I prefer the crawl, and advocate first learning to roll from side to side, so as to get the arm out of the water on the over-arm stroke. Most beginners do not roll sufficiently and plow straight ahead without getting any traction with the arms on the roll. If you turn the body, one arm is naturally partly out of the water.

It is good practice to hook up your toes on the edge of the pool and roll the upper torso and shoulders as you go through the arm stroke.

Gossens are Victors In Softball Circuit

Kimberly — A large crowd saw Gossens Tavern defeat DeLeuw Tavern, 8 to 3, in the Twilight league at the ball park Monday evening. The winners gathered eight hits off of E. Vander Velden, DeLeuw peger.

Getting one run in the opening frame, the Gossens team scored three runs in the second frame and rallied with three more in the fourth when W. Widenberg walked and N. Gossens singled. J. Lorn then flied out while J. Van Cuyk hit a triple to clear the bases. Another score was added in the fifth frame. C. Vander Zanden started the scoring for DeLeuws when he got on by an error in the opening frame. Hal Wentzel added the second run when he walked in the

Kimberly Holy Name Takes Playoff Game

Kimberly — Having been trounced at Kimberly last Friday in the first game of a Catholic Boys league championship playoff by St. Mary's, Appleton. The Holy Name midgets put themselves into the playoff by an 8 to 2 victory over Appleton in the second game Monday morning at Pierce Park.

Larson pitched for Holy Name, giving up six hits and striking out four. McClone, pegging for St. Mary's, allowed thirteen hits and struck out nine. Van Cuyk led the Holy Name attack with a double and a homer. Bouressa and Them also had two hits each. The final game will be played at Pierce Park Thursday morning.

DIVOT DIGGINGS

By Dick Davis

AN INTO some interesting figures the other day and was surprised to learn that Riverview Country club will be 42 years old come next August. The club was organized Aug. 24, 1898, and had but five holes "way back when." Butte des Morts Golf club is the second oldest in this vicinity, it having been organized in March of 1924.

New London's Springvale course was organized in 1925 and Neenah-Menasha's Ridgeway club has been going since 1926. Appleton's municipal course was opened in the fall of 1928 and Kaukauna Golf club and North Shore both were opened in 1930.

The sport has been growing steadily the last 10 years but no additional facilities have appeared and that's one of the reasons for another nine holes out at "munie."

Few were the Appleton golfers who were not pulling for Frank Walsh, former Butte des Morts pro, when it was learned he was leading at the end of the third round in the recent national open at Cleveland's Canterbury course. Frank was one stroke ahead of the field with a 213 but couldn't hold it in there on the last lap and took a 79 for a total of 292, five strokes away from the 287s carded by Gene Sarazen and Lawson Little, the latter going on to win in a playoff.

Frank usually is up among the leaders but never has knocked off a major tournament.

Dan Steinberg, Jr., went out in the rain and mist Saturday and came in with a 33, three below par, for the lowest mark turned in by a Butte des Morts member this season. He took 42 on the second nine for a neat 75. Everett Leonard, who pros at Butte des Morts, sizzled around the Oshkosh Municipal course in 68 last Friday. He smacked 31 and 37.

They say John Rechner is digging so much dirt that it already looks like an 18-hole course out at municipal. Leo Mortell and John Van Orford, his buddies, said it resembled the Kentucky derby on a muddy track.

"Beg Pardon"

Elmer Honkamp, who recently came in with a snug 99, says his clubs are not for sale, especially since he cracked a 78 last Thursday at Butte des Morts. Elmer started off with two birdie 3's and added another one on the eighth hole. He scored a first round 40 despite a 7 on the fourth and an 8 on the sixth. Elmer went to work on the last nine and birdied the short twelfth and sixteenth holes for a 38. John Brockschlager was his partner.

Honkamp says he will take on any left-handed golfer in the Fox River valley.

R. M. Billings was "so near but yet so far" from a hole-in-one at Riverview when his tee shot stopped one foot from the cup on Eagle's Flight, the 135-yard No. 8 hole. He got his birdie.

Guy Waldo put one into "the books" recently while playing at Riverview with Dr. E. L. Bolton. Waldo's drive rifled toward a thorn apple tree about 150 yards from the No. 6 tee and disappeared after whistling into the branches. The group scoured the entire area but the ball was not to be found. Finally, with but thin hope, they shook the tree and down came the ball.

Butte des Morts' Banter: Abe Burstein birdied three of the first five holes and carded 41-43-84 after a 2-week hospital sojourn.

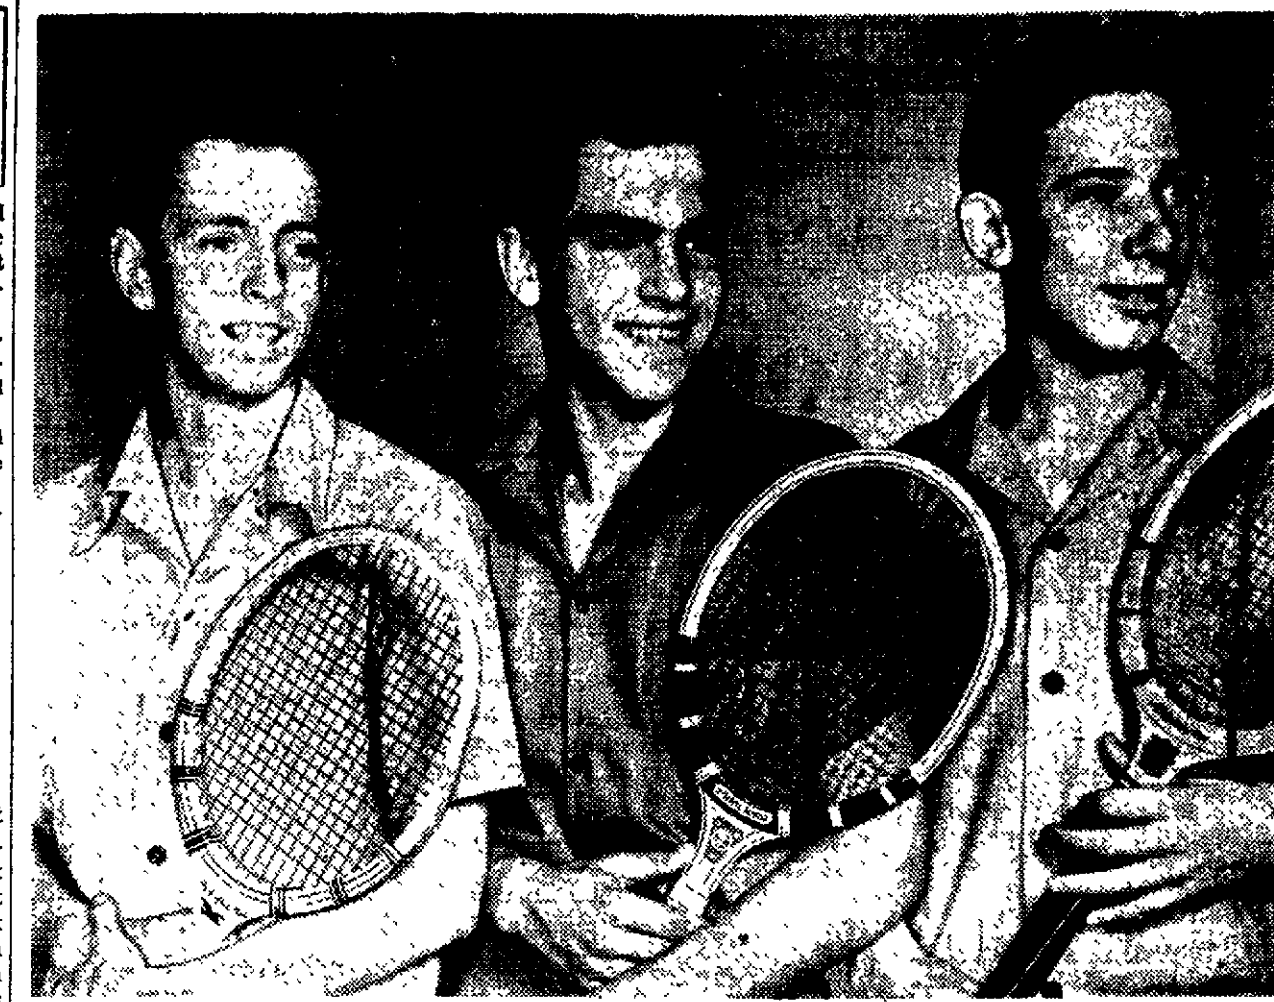

George N. Baldwin says Dr. D. W. Curtin is getting too tough for him, the latter having chipped up three approaches in nine holes.

Art Haskins bewilders his opponents with his unique style of addressing the ball. He takes 'em on the fly.

George Beckley had the edge on the Rev. F. C. Reuter, O. K. Ferry and E. C. Hilfert Saturday with his long rain coat.

Steve Kulich, who was hot earlier this season, had trouble with his tee shots in Twilight league play.... His ball would go something like this.

R. A. Knapp and Carson Harwood had a ding-dong match in the mud and water Sunday

COUNTY TENNIS CHAMPS AND A RUNNER UP

Betty Jameson, Patty Berg Prepared for Golf Comebacks

BY HENRY B. JAMESON

ST. LOUIS—Two of the nation's greatest women golfers—staging a brilliant "comeback"—at the ripe old age of 21—faced anything but easy sledding today as they moved into match play in the women's Trans-Mississippi tournament.

Evidence that the two stars, national champion Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Texas, and Patty Berg of Minneapolis, Minn., seeking her third straight T-M title, were set for a dog-fight came early from their close qualifying scores, which broke and tied, respectively the previous first day record.

Betty fired a scorching four-under-par 73 over the hilly Glen Echo course yesterday for a new all-time low. The best previous medal card was 74, equalled last year and turned in again here by Miss Berg.

Betty has been bounced out of tournament after tournament since winning the national crown but she has gone back to her old style of deliberate play which she hopes will regain the T-M title she held in 1937.

Patty, freckle-faced University of Minnesota coed, was the national champion in 1938 but was unable to Thursday—B'nai B'rith versus St. Therese.

Friday—Mt. Olive versus Congregational.

St. Therese handed Evangelicals their third straight defeat, 13 to 5, in a church league softball game at Roosevelt school diamond Monday. Berg hurled for the winners and struck out four while allowing four walks and eight hits. Felton and Bielke mounded for the losers and were touched for 16 hits while both walked one and struck out one.

St. Therese opened fast in the first inning with three runs on an error followed by three singles. The team added four in the second on two singles, an error, a walk and a single. Williamson smacked a homer in the third. In the fifth frame, B. Calmes walked, went to second on a putout and scored on a single by S. Calmes. The last three runs came in the seventh when Berg opened with a double and scored on Dunsirn's single. Dunsirn was out at third when he overshot the bag. Paulie followed with a double but was out at third when he failed to run on Welhouse's single. Hein followed with a home run to left field.

Evangelical broke into the scoring column with three in the fourth on a single by Olson, a walk to Priebe who was out at second on a short passed ball, a single by Meyers and a long home run by Franke. Bielke counted in the fifth with a circuit blow. Schwerke opened the sixth with a triple and scored on Franke's single.

Fail to Make Effort for Extra Trick

BY ELY CULBERTSON

A declarer should consider himself fortunate indeed when he gets the opportunity to make a play that may gain a trick and, at worst, can lose nothing. That was the case in today's hand. But only one declarer out of seven in a duplicate game took advantage of the situation.

North, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable

♣ Q 8 2

The bidding varied greatly among the seven tables, but in every case South became the declarer at six spades. Typical bidding was as follows:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
4 diamonds	Pass	4 no trump	Pass
5 clubs	Pass	6 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Those North-South teams that were using the Blackwood convention answered the four no trump bid with five diamonds to show one ace, but this, of course, did not affect the final contract.

Strange to say, the opening lead was the same at all tables, namely, a club thru North's second bid suit. At six tables the declarers apparently were satisfied to play for their contract and forget all about the extra trick. They won the opening lead in dummy and immediately led a heart in order to be able to ruff one heart with the spade queen. They then discarded on dummy's second club trick, after which they ruffed a diamond, drew trumps, cashed their remaining heart trick, and finally conceded a heart to the enemy.

As stated, only one declarer in the room realized that the hand was made to order for a free play for an extra trick. After winning the opening club lead in dummy this declarer made the obviously correct return of the diamond king. As it happened, East chose to cover, which, of course, was "duck soup" for the declarer. He ruffed, then cashed the heart ace and ruffed a low heart on the diamond queen and another on the club king. He then ruffed a club with a high trump, drew the outstanding trumps, and spread the hand.

It will be observed that absolutely no risk was involved in the lead of the diamond king thru East. If the latter did not have the ace, or failed to cover, South could, if he chose, ruff anyway, then run a heart, just as the other declarers had done. Or, if the diamond ace was not played on the king, declarer could merely discard a heart, secure in the fact that the spade queen would always be an entry to dummy and that, unless a miracle occurred, his two remaining hearts could be discarded on a diamond and a club. The pertinent point is that the lead of the diamond king risked nothing while creating the opportunity for an extra trick.

My Neighbor Says—

Beets are among the easiest to grow. They grow quickly too, and another planting made now will give you a large crop for the table long before the end of the season. It is not necessary to let beets attain large size before they are eaten. On the contrary it is better to dig them when they are only half grown and little beets are ideal for canning.

Surfaces to be whitewashed should first be well cleaned and freed of any particles that might scale off. Scrub with a stiff brush or broom. Whitewash adheres to most surfaces better than it does to dry ones. So sponge off the area to be whitewashed with cold water.

When washing spinach in a handful of salt is shaken over it all sand and grit will be easily removed.

Snap fasteners are more easily sewn onto dark clothing if one-half of fastener is first sewn on securely then ball in the center of fastener is marked with chalk pressed against goods on other side. Chalk mark will show where other half of fastener should be sewn.

Keep a spray handy and take a shot at all bugs that show themselves. The younger the plant, the more dangerous the pest is.

STRAWBERRY DELICACIES

Plump, sun ripened strawberries are soon to be picked from local patches. Then come menus, featuring these delicious berries.

Since everyone has her own favorite for strawberry shortcake, my first suggestion for the menu maker is a cream pie filled with a velvety custard, topped with ripe, juicy strawberries. Have whipped cream on hand for those who needn't worry about adding an extra ounce to the waistline. It's the dessert for June dinners.

After the family have enjoyed this pie, give them still another treat. Try a light, luscious chiffon pie. It is a tempting dessert everyone will enjoy. Another recipe to try during the strawberry season is strawberry muffins. Make them frequently during the short local season.

Strawberry Cream Pie

- 3 tablespoons butter
  - 1 tablespoon cornstarch
  - 2 tablespoons flour
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 3 egg yolks
  - 1 teaspoon vanilla
  - 1 pint strawberries
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 1 1/2 cups milk
- Melt butter in top of double boiler, blend in cornstarch, flour and sugar, add milk and cook over boiling water for 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Add well beaten egg yolks and cook two minutes longer, continuing to stir. Remove from heat, add vanilla and beat until smooth. Cool. Pour into baked butter pie shell and chill. Wash strawberries, hull, and cut in halves, sprinkle with 1/4 cup sugar, let stand until ready to serve. Arrange drained berries over the cream filling. Spread with slightly sweetened whipped cream and serve at once.

Strawberry Chiffon Pie

- 1 tablespoon gelatin
  - 1/2 cup cold water
  - 3 eggs
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 2 teaspoons lemon juice
  - 1 teaspoon cream of tartar
  - 1 cup sugar
  - 1 pint fresh strawberries
- Soak gelatin in cold water about 5 minutes. Then beat egg yolks slightly in top of double boiler. Blend in the 1/2 cup sugar, and the salt and lemon juice. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until smooth and thickened (5 to 10 minutes). Now blend in the soaked gelatin and crushed strawberries and beat with a rotary beater 1 minute. Remove from heat, and cool. Chill in refrigerator until thick enough to barely hold its shape. Then beat again with rotary beater until smooth. Make a stiff meringue by beating the egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff enough to hold a point, then gradually beating in the 1/2 cup sugar, continuing to beat until the mixture is stiff and glossy. Fold this meringue into the strawberry mixture, and pile lightly into cooled baked 9-inch pie shell. Chill in refrigerator until "set" about 1 hour. Keep cool until nearly ready to serve. If desired, spread stiffly whipped cream over the top of the pie.

Strawberry Muffins

- 2 cups flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg
- 1 cup crushed strawberries, sweetened
- 4 tablespoons melted shortening
- Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Beat egg and add to undrained berries along with shortening. Add to flour mixture stirring only enough to dampen flour. Bake in greased muffin tins in a hot oven 425 degrees F. for 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 16 small muffins.

Youngsters Must Learn to Respect Other's Property

BY ANGELO PATRI

"We'll just have to move out to the country somewhere so the children can have a little freedom. I'm tired of complaints about their noise in the house. I can't chloroform them and that's what the neighbors seem to expect. As if a child didn't have to make a noise once in a while."

After househunting for a weary while a house was found that looked about right. "And that place next door is lovely. Nice people must live there. We'll take it," and the family with three children moved in.

One morning the next door neighbor—the nice family—looked in amazement at the scene on her lawn. She saw one small boy in overalls, one small wagon, a shovel, seven or eight bricks, sand, a tin pail, a mess of sods, gravel and water.

Wrong Attitude

"What are you doing, little boy?" she asked when she got her breath. "Playing."

"But why are you playing here? Why aren't you in your own yard?" The small boy looked up, then sent a swift glance about the tended gardens and said, "Cox it's nice here."

"But it won't be nice if you make a mess like this. Take your things and go home."

Children have a hard time these days. Apartment houses do not make them welcome. Suburban towns are not too pleased to have them. It seems as if only their mothers want them sometimes. And yet, people do like children. They don't like them running and pounding on bare floors above their heads. They don't like them destroying gardens and digging holes in their lawns. They like them when they are well-mannered, show at least a degree of consideration for other people's feelings and rights.

Most people are willing to go a long way toward children if they have manners, even the beginnings of manners. Mothers could assure themselves and their children of a heartier welcome by considering these things. Many have done so with gratifying success.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Spinsterhood Is Better Than Second-Rate Husband

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix—Do you think it better to marry a poor specimen of a man than not to marry at all? A group of us girls are wondering about this. We see our friends marrying men who drink, who won't work, who are philanderers, who have bad dispositions, who can promise a girl no security, and we would like to know if they are happier married to such men than they would be if they stayed single? Is love enough to cover all of these faults and make marriage sublime? I, for instance, am in love with a man who is a tightwad, who is grouchy and hard to get along with, who is jealous and who runs around a lot with other girls; yet he is smart, has good manners and makes money. Would I be happy if I married him with these outstanding faults? Shall I give him up or go on like the rest and take him?

Answer:

A very wise woman who was twitted with being an old maid once said that it was better to be laughed at because you were not married than not to be able to laugh because you were married.

Dorothy Dix

There is a world of wisdom wrapped up in this sage remark. For, while it is true that the luckiest woman in the world is the one who has a good husband, the most unfortunate one in the world is the one who has a bad husband.

So the old maid at least plays safe, and if she misses the best gift that God can bestow upon a woman, she escapes the greatest misery that the devil can send one.

When I see, as I often do, enable them to live in comfort, to dress prettily, to go places and have a nice congenial circle of friends about them; girls who, as we say, are sitting pretty, marry drunkards, or shiftless ne'er-do-wells, or jealous men, or men of mean, cantankerous dispositions of whom they are really afraid, it seems to be that they are candidates for a Home of Feeble-Minded instead of the altar.

I soon became infatuated with him and this led to our having dances, rides in the country and luncheons together.

But now I have gotten confused and bewildered over this affair and don't seem to know my own mind. I don't love this man any more. I love my husband. But I have lost interest in home, church and friends. Am restless and tired. Ashamed to know that I am not the person my friends think I am.

What shall I do? Shall I tell my husband about my philandering, forget the other man and become a good housewife?

WORKING WIFE.

Answer:

What's the matter with you is that your conscience is troubling you. You know that you are doing wrong and that the end of it is bound to be misery for your good husband, the man's wife, the little children whose home will be wrecked and for you and the man.

A curse goes with stolen love, and it rarely brings any happiness to the man and woman who have robbed others to get what they could not honestly take.

You would think that the passion that is strong enough to make men and women dishonor their own ideals, turn traitors to their own faithful mates, give up their children and brave scandal and disgrace, would be strong enough to outlast life itself.

But, strangely enough, it seldom does. Nearly always, having gotten what they paid such a fearful price for, the man and woman seem to fall apart. A bright falls upon their love, and they seem to lose interest in each other and either part, or live wretchedly together.

Break off this foolish affair while there is yet time. Give up your job and be a good faithful wife to your husband. But never tell him of your escapade. You have done him enough harm without ruining his faith in you. Let him believe in you still. Don't try to shrieve your soul by confession. Your payment for your wrongdoing is bearing your burden alone.

Have Your Nose Made to Order

Dear Dorothy Dix—I have a very ugly nose. I am very sensitive about it and cry myself to sleep over my misfortune. Is there anything I can do about it?

Answer:

Surely. Nothing easier than having a nose made to order these days. Any good plastic surgeon can turn you out Greek profile or a saucy up-turned pug, as you desire. Which

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University.

At the zoo people will often laugh at the monkeys or tease them into activity. Perhaps the monkeys also enjoy their view of the queer creatures teasing peanuts to them. Maybe Tommy's supposed stage fright is only concentrated analysis of the odd behavior he observes in the adults around him. In any case, it is natural for children to pass through a shy phase at Tommy's age.

CASE Q-186: Tommy T., aged 3, is an attractive youngster who worries his parents.

"We don't know how to overcome his bashfulness," his fond mother protested.

"It has often been embarrassing for my Daddy and me when we have guests or take him visiting."

"We tell about all the cute things Tommy says or does, but when we try to get him to show off, he shyly stares at the strangers and will neither move nor make a sound."

"He will not tell people his name or answer any other simple questions. In fact, at the age of two he seemed more sociable than now at the age of three."

"Other children in the crowd are made over and petted for their cuteness, but Tommy refuses to talk. We have even punished him in order to make him answer people, but that didn't do much good, either."

"Dr. Crane, how can we overcome his shyness in a child?"

DIAGNOSIS

You readers who own parrots may recall that those birds may stolidly stare at visitors, especially when we want them to show off their cute phrases. We coax and cajole, but they may refrain from uttering a word.

Then when the guests have departed, the parrots will chatter and repeat every word in their entire repertoire.

Children frequently do the same thing, especially at the ages from

COOL OUTFIT

There's a scrubbed-and-thinned appeal to the pinafore—most beguiling of little-girl fashions. Anne Adams offers her enchanting version in Pattern 4330—a cool pinafore that's useful as a sun-dress, worn with panties beneath, or as an apron to wear over other frocks. It buttons down the back and may have a saucy back bow. The matching or contrasting ruffles that spring out from the bodice look gay with tie-ribs. The brief skirt is full and gathered. To complete the picture, there's an eye-shading sun-bonnet of self-fabric or a pretty color. Simple panties that are cut in one piece are included in this quickly-made style.

Pattern 4330 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, sunbonnet and pinafore, takes 2 1/2 yards 35 inch fabric and 3 yards tie-ribs.

before. The service plate (or place plate, which means precisely the same thing) is simply the plate with which you set each place at table. Moreover, as already noted, the rule of good taste is this: If the service plate is larger, more ornate and more conspicuous than all the other plates that are to appear in turn upon your table, it is out of scale, or not in harmony, and therefore plainly in bad taste.

Properly, therefore, when setting your table your object is to produce an effect which is pleasing.

Naturally, then, you choose things that look well together. If you have a set of plates that harmonize with the flowers to be used in your centerpiece, you would naturally set the places with these plates for this particular meal. At another time you would set your table with plates that add most beauty to another decoration. In short, the service (or place) plates must be considered as part of the decoration of your table as a whole.

On the other hand, plates used for other courses are noticed singly and in greater detail. Therefore, at a table with whichever plates best help the general effect, and then choose plates for your other courses which are most suitable for the particular foods to be served. Plates which are light in color as well as especially worth looking at, are usually selected for salad or dessert, because salad and dessert are rather prettier—and therefore more becoming to fragile porcelain than either fish or meat. Large dark plates suggest meat, but light ones are also suitable, unless too fragile in type.

A Party for Mother-In-Law

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother-in-law will visit us soon and I would like to give a tea to have some of my older and younger friends meet her. I had begun to write the invitations today but will put this off until I have your suggestion for the proper wording. She has been married again and does not have our same name.

Answer: To those whom you know very well, you might write: "To meet John's mother" and then beneath in parentheses (Mrs. Henry Jones). But to those whom you know less well, I think it would be best to write short notes, in the form of yesterday: Dear Mrs. X—, will you come in for a cup of tea on Wednesday the 10th of July at six o'clock? Mrs. Henry Jones, my husband's mother, will be staying with us then and we would like so much to have you meet her. Sincerely,

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "The Service Plate." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of this paper, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y.

LITTLE SPITFIRE

By Jean Randall

YESTERDAY: Brenda's scheme works. Adelaide, wondering why her housekeeping is even worse than usual, agrees to go away for a rest, and Isabel gladly agrees to run the house. Mac catches on to Brenda's coming.

Chapter 22

Home Sweet Home

"At first I thought it was simply to get Adelaide this vacation; she does need a little rest from us, poor old girl!" said Mac. "But now you've got her off, something's worrying you. I sat down in the library hearing you pace about as long as I could bear it. Want to tell me about it, Brenda?"

She shook her head. "Not just yet, Mac, but thank you! It's terribly nice of you to realize I wouldn't indulge in such foolish behavior without—without a purpose. I won't pace any more. You've taken part of my worry away already!" She smiled at him and he returned the smile.

"That's good!"

Monday morning Brenda lingered nervously at the breakfast table, waiting for Isabel to summon Grenadine and give her the orders for the day. That was Adelaide's habit. Daily she indulged in a monologue which ran something like this:

"Well, Grenadine, I suppose we're going to have to eat again today. Dear dear, I wish somebody would invent a new animal, seems as if all the old ones have been used so many times we're all tired of them. Let's see. Better start with dinner, that's the hardest. Steak—no, we had steak last night. A roast, then. But I said I wouldn't have roast before Sunday, meat is so terribly high. Chops? M'm; yes, I guess chops. Tell the butcher to cut them thicker than he did the last ones. And Grenadine, try not to cook them till they're like bits of wood, won't you?"

"Vegetables. Well, there are always potatoes, thank goodness. Creamed? No, better not creamed. Baked, then. . . What? Oh, dear, oh, dear! Yes, we did have them baked last night with the steak. Grenadine, couldn't you just for once suggest something?"

Amusedly Brenda wondered how long this sort of thing would go on if an interruption did not invariably put an end to it. Sometimes it was the telephone, sometimes it was Miss Ormond who rose very early and began to crave the society of others soon after breakfast, sometimes it was Grenadine herself who in a flash of unusual inspiration suggested a tentative menu.

Remembering all this, she sat tensely waiting for Isabel to summon the cook. But Isabel rose and started upstairs in the most leisurely fashion imaginable.

"Isabel!" Brenda's voice was panicky. "Aren't you going to plan dinner?"

Isabel gave her a quiet smile. "The menu for three days ahead are planned, and the day's order was in before you were downstairs. Grenadine has a typed menu with full directions—not that I intend to trust to her judgment in the matter, however!"

Brenda almost staggered with relief. This did sound like efficiency!

Pure Magic

PLACE PLATE

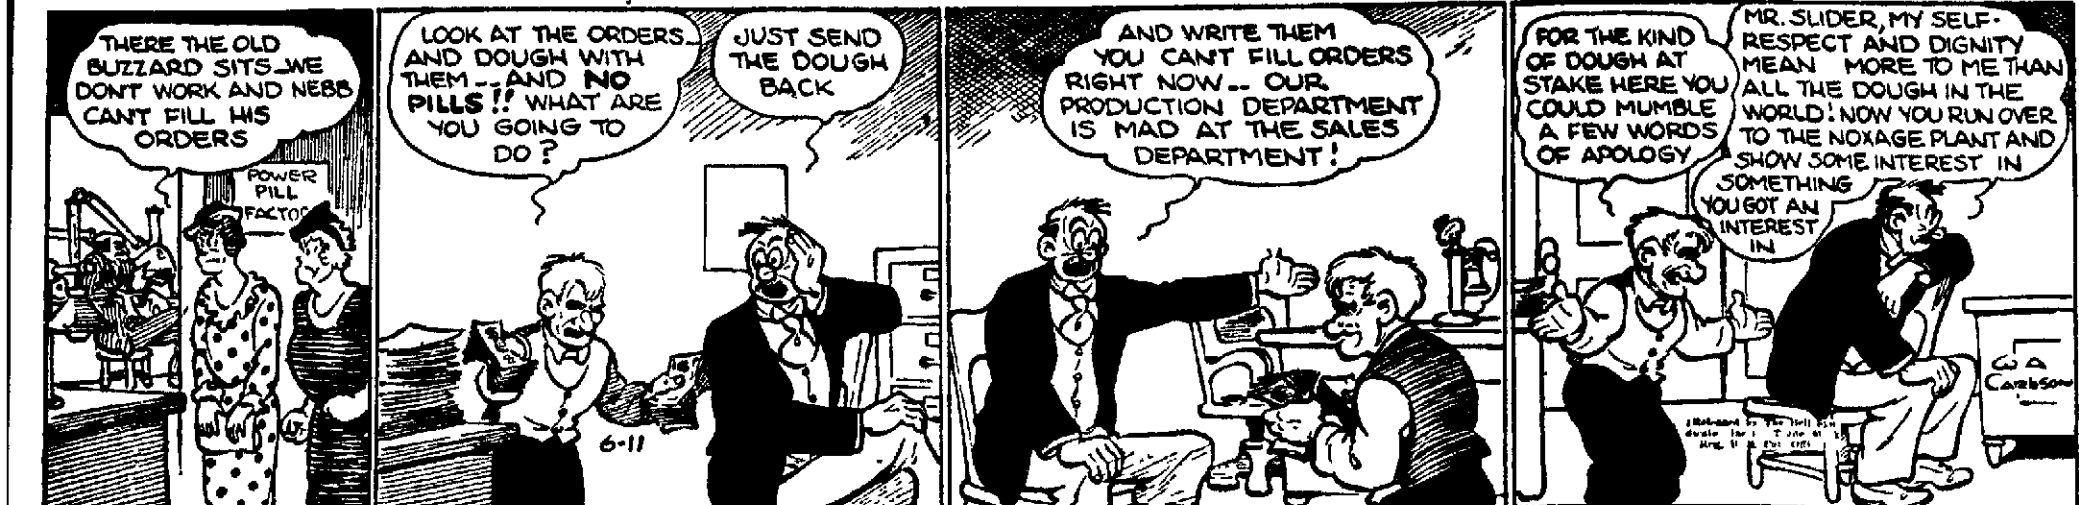

In perfectly appointed houses there is rarely if ever such a thing as a service plate set apart from every other plate. Where, or when, or why the idea ever occurred to manufacturers or buyers or advertising copy writers, I have no idea. It is of course entirely proper to use a certain set of plates for service plates, and for nothing else if you so choose. But this much is certain: A plate that is out of scale and out of harmony with the room, or the table appointments with which it is to be used, is contrary to the first principle of beauty which is suitability.

Again today, a reader is puzzled. "What is meant by service plates?" she asks. "I had always rather thought service plates and dinner plates were the same, but apparently they are not."

So to her, let me explain more clearly than I seem to have done

TANKS HELPED ALLIES
Yesterday we spoke of the tanks which first took part in warfare in 1916. They were successful on the battlefield, but their success was not complete.

The early tanks were fitted with treads of the tractor type. These gave them the power to pass over rough ground, far from any road. Yet some of them became stuck in shell holes.

The first tank attack brought about the capture of prisoners and trenches, but there were not enough tanks at that time to change the course of the war.

A thousand more tanks were ordered, and in a few months they were ready for action. The new tanks were fitted with thicker armor than the first ones to be put in the field.

Meanwhile French inventors had been working on much the same idea. They planned a lighter type of tank, and factories began to turn them out.

During 1917 tanks were employed in several battles. Each time they won some success, but they did little to bring about an important victory until the Battle of Cambrai in November.

At Cambrai, the tanks were brought into use without giving the usual warning of a barrage. The barrage, or bombardment, was common to battles of the World War. It was a curtain of artillery fire to guard troops who were about to attack. The cost of a barrage is very great—in the Battle of Ypres it was figured that shells to the value of $110,000,000 were fired for this purpose.

At six o'clock in the morning, Allied troops near Cambrai made ready to follow a large fleet of 378 tanks. Since there was no barrage, the Germans were not expecting an attack. The machines lumbered forward, and the Germans surrendered or fled in terror. An advance of seven miles was made by the Allies in that attack.

The second Battle of the Marne has been called the turning point of the World War. It took place in July, 1918, and the French pushed the Germans back several miles. Their victory was due largely to the use of tanks.

From that time forward tanks appeared in almost every battle. More than any other war machine, they explain the defeat of the Germans in the World War.

Lieber Is Named Neenah Chamber Of Commerce Head

Permanent Organization Of Business Men Is Formed at Dinner

Neenah — Otto Lieber, Jr., head of the Lieber Lumber and Mill-work company, was elected president of the Neenah Chamber of Commerce as the newly organized business men's group was permanently formed at a dinner meeting last night at the Valley Inn.

The other officers named were Gus Kalfahs, Jr., first vice president; E. L. Rickard, second vice president; A. A. Hennig, treasurer, and Elmer H. Radtke, temporary secretary.

The board of directors elected is composed of S. P. Shattuck, George Sande and Kalfahs, 3-year terms; E. E. Jandrey, A. H. Angermeyer and George Boyd, Jr., 2-year terms, and S. M. Pickard, Lyle Williams and William Murphy, 1-year terms.

Hugh Corbett Talks
Hugh Corbett, secretary of La Crosse Chamber of Commerce and former secretary of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, told members and guests of the newly organized business group that a "Chamber of Commerce is a publicity organization for your town," as he listed the seven fundamentals around which a Chamber of Commerce as well as any city is built.

The seven agencies listed by the secretary are agriculture, retail business, manufacturing, wholesaling, transportation, advertising, and socializing.

Corbett said that the hardest effort for a secretary of such an organization is to keep the officers, directors and membership alive.

He said, "A Chamber of Commerce can take a town which is practically dead and revive it." He urged the new organization to seek new industries for the communities, but he pointed out that the industries already established in a city should be encouraged.

"I'd rather help the man in the town than take in a stranger."

Outlining the work done in this field in LaCrosse, Corbett told the Neenah merchants that advertising makes a city grow.

Outlines Aims
At the outset of the meeting, Lieber listed some of the things the organization hopes to accomplish. They are create civic pride, educate the merchants to do a better job of merchandising to encourage the people to buy at home, create better feeling among the merchants themselves, stop outsiders soliciting in Neenah, discourage house-to-house canvassing by outsiders, make Neenah a friendly city, welcome newcomers, welcome the farmers, publicize the town, attempt to get workers employed in Neenah to live in the city, work with the city council, promote educational campaigns to encourage local people to buy at home.

Mayor Edwin A. Kalfahs in a short address said that there is room for improvement in Neenah's retail business. "Frankly, I believe that Neenah is not getting its per capita share of business," the city's chief executive said, pointing out that industrially, Neenah is one of the leaders and it is in fine shape physically.

Police Chief Irving Stilt told the business men that "You are striving for cooperation which is needed so badly in these times, and I assure the full cooperation of the police department."

George Sande, former Neenah Chamber of Commerce president, lauded the Neenah Junior Chamber of Commerce as the organization which "woke up the older business men."

Owe Service
Max W. Schalk told the business men that "Merchants are continuing on the taking side while we should be giving. We owe something to the community, not necessarily donations but in the form of service done collectively. He listed some of the objectives of such as organizations, sales promotion, Christmas openings, advertising, and diversified employment in Neenah.

A. A. Hennig, cashier of the First National bank, quoted statistics showing the amount of money spent outside Neenah. In 1939, Neenah's two banks imported $5,000,000 in currency and silver, he stated, pointing out that if the money earned here wasn't spent outside, the banks would be exporting currency.

Hennig showed that since 1937 until this year employment has increased from as low as 2,250 men to 2,650, and that weekly payroll in Neenah in April amounted to $63,100, an average of $24.50 a week for each man or an average of 61 cents per hour.

RUBBISH WEDNESDAY
Neenah—Rubbish will be collected in the fourth district Wednesday, according to H. O. Haugh, city health officer. The district includes Sixth street and the area north to the city limits.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and display advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street, and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for display advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or telephoned. Orders for classified advertising should be placed by telephoning 543 in Appleton, and the cost of the telephone call will be rebated. The Twin Cities office closes at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Neenah Women Will Preside at Brillion Missionary Meeting

Neenah — Mrs. Arthur McLeod, 244 Fourth street, will preside at the Brillion camp meeting of Methodist churches is held at Brillion beginning tomorrow and continuing through Sunday. Mrs. Guy Wilkinson, Antigo, will be guest speaker at the Friday session, discussing "Women of Today in Christian Service."

Other representatives of First Methodist church, Neenah, plan to attend sessions. The Brillion Young People's institute begins Monday, June 17 at Brillion and continues through Sunday, June 23. Stephen A. Habousch will be guest speaker at the Rev. William A. Riggs, pastor of the local Methodist church, will be an instructor at summer sessions at Camp Byron next month.

Summer Program Will Include 17 Net Tournaments

Series Will Begin With Junior Girls' Doubles Competition

Neenah — Ivan Williams, Neenah High school tennis coach, who is in charge of the summer tennis program, reported today that 17 tennis tournaments for boys and girls as well as men and women will be conducted this summer.

The first tournament will be held Friday and Saturday and it will be the junior girls' doubles event.

Tournaments will be held at the high school courts, although some first round matches will be held at the Washington park and Doty park courts. Entries for the tournaments should be made with Williams or playground directors.

The tournaments schedule is as follows:
June 21-22, girls' singles; June 24-25, women's doubles; July 1, men's doubles; July 5-6, boys' singles; July 12-13, girls' doubles; July 19-20, junior girls' singles; July 13-14, men's doubles.

July 22, men's singles; July 26-27, junior boys' singles; July 29-Aug. 2, women's singles; Aug. 2-3, boys' doubles; Aug. 3-4, men's singles; Aug. 9-10, boys' singles; Aug. 12-16, mixed doubles, and Aug. 15-16, boys' doubles.

Williams reported that there are 20 traveling trophies which will be awarded winners of the various tournaments.

Designating the age classifications, Williams explained that boys' and girls' tournaments are open to children who were under 15 years of age on Jan. 1, while the junior events are open to those under 18 years of age Jan. 1. There also is a boys' tournament for those who were under 12 years of age Jan. 1.

Mrs. Crockett Home From Trip as Representative of C.D.A. Regent

Neenah—Mrs. S. E. Crockett, 447 Racine street, for 10 years state regent of the Wisconsin Catholic Daughters, and who, about a year ago, was named field representative for the National Catholic Daughters of America by Miss Mary C. Duffy, supreme regent, has returned from an extensive trip through the southwest as Miss Duffy's representative.

Mrs. Crockett, who left Menasha about two weeks ago, has been guest speaker at state conferences of Catholic Daughters courts in St. Louis, Mo., Santa Fe, N. M., Albuquerque and Gallup, N. M., and Phoenix, Arizona. While in St. Louis, she conferred with Monsignor Steck, and while in Santa Fe had an appointment with Archbishop Gerken who also conducted her on tour of the archives of the archdiocese of New Mexico, a project which the Catholic Daughters in that area are aiding. At Albuquerque, Mrs. Crockett was guest speaker at the first state conference in that area and was entertained at a tea at the home of Mrs. Frank McCullough, wife of the grand deputy of the Knights of Columbus.

A tea in honor of Mrs. Crockett was given also at Santa Fe during her stay there. While in Gallup, Mrs. Crockett installed the officers of that court during the conference sessions.

A 2-day conference was held in Phoenix, Ariz., and at the Saturday evening banquet, Bishop Gercke, Tucson, was guest of honor. Mrs. Crockett visited the Indian missions in the southwest during her trips and many of the old churches and missions out of Santa Fe, N. M.

Miss Duffy may ask Mrs. Crockett to represent her at fall conventions in the northwest early in the autumn.

Mrs. Crockett, together with her husband, left this morning for Fort Collins, Colo., where Mr. Crockett will enter the summer school at the Colorado State College. They expect to return about mid-August.

St. Mary Gridders To Appear in Four Home Night Games

Catholic Squad Will Play At Butte des Morts Field on Fridays

Menasha—St. Mary's High school gridders will play their home games on Friday nights next season, according to the schedule arranged for 1940. The Zephyrs will have an eight game schedule of which four will be under the lights at Butte des Morts field.

Arrangements have been made for use of Butte des Morts field for home games and the schedule has been arranged so that it will not conflict with the Menasha High school home schedule.

The season will open Friday night, Sept. 13, with St. Benedict the Moor High school of Milwaukee, a Negro school, playing here. The Zephyrs met the Milwaukee team in basketball this year and scored a decisive victory. The conference season will open Sunday, Sept. 22, with the Zephyrs playing St. Joseph High school at Keshena.

St. Norbert High school of De Pere will play in the only home conference tilt for the Zephyrs Sept. 27. The season probably will be the last for the DePere school as plans have been made to shift the high school to Green Bay.

New London, Oct. 4
The Zephyrs will oppose New London at home Oct. 4. The New London team edged the Zephyrs 13 to 12 last year at New London. The St. Mary's team will play its final conference game Sunday, Oct. 13, at St. John's of Little Chute. The following Saturday, Oct. 19, the Zephyrs will travel to Neenah.

The high spot of the home season will be Friday night, Oct. 25, when Edgewood academy of Madison comes to Menasha. The Madison team barely managed a 7 to 6 victory over the Zephyrs at Madison last season.

The football season will close Armistice day when the Zephyrs travel to Kaukauna to meet the champions of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference.

Over 200 'Students' Enroll for Swimming Lessons at Neenah

Neenah — More than 150 beginners, 25 advanced beginners and 33 advanced swimmers have enrolled in the free swimming lessons being taught this summer under the playground program. Lessons will be taught on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings from 9 o'clock until 11:30.

Armin Gerhardt and Florence Koepsel Oberreich are in charge of the swimming lessons. It was explained that children attending Bible schools may register for the courses after the schools have disbanded. Registrations for lessons will be accepted any time during the 10-week program.

Alumni Group Presents 20 Paintings to Menasha High

Menasha — The Alumni association of Menasha High school has presented 20 framed oil paintings to the school, A. J. Armstrong, principal of Menasha High school, announced today. The pictures, which range in size from 19 by 16 inches to 32 by 44 inches, are valued at over $200.

The pictures will be placed in the various classrooms of the high school. Others will be added to the high school collection later. Some of the pictures are copies of old masters such as Rembrandt's "Night Watch" and "The Gleaners" by Millet.

The subjects of the paintings range from the Pueblo Indians to landscapes and seascapes. Among the landscapes summer, winter, spring, and fall are pictured in various scenes.

The subjects include "A Summer Day" by Wiegand, "Wane of a Winter Day" by G. Symons, "Stone City" by Wood, "Horizon" by Browne, "Sunset Glory" by Guermacheff, "December" by A. M. Garter, "Spring Landscape" by Dorn, "Interior in Brabant" by Keille, "The Gleaners" copied from Millet, "The Concert" by Ter Borch, "Spanking Breeze" by Fritz Neuman, "Drifting" by Lei-Hankey, "Indian Weaver" by Amick, "Poplars" by Kustner, "The Sentinels" by Young, "The Blanket of Snow" by Choulte, "Carpet of Allah" by Sayre, "In the Gloom" by Buttersack, "Falling Leaves" by Bundy, and "Night Watch" copied from Rembrandt.

Officers of the Alumni association last year were Mrs. Viola Kettner, president; Jim Senebrenner, vice president, and Harold Landgraf, secretary and treasurer. The officers elected June 1 for the current year are Jim Senebrenner, president; Philip Gazecki, vice president, and Harold Landgraf, secretary and treasurer.

Children Flock to Three Playgrounds As Program Begins

Neenah—Neenah children today flocked to the three playgrounds as the annual summer program got underway, according to Armin Gerhardt, supervisor.

The first tournament is the washers event and children in five age groups will compete. Winners of the playground tournaments will meet at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Green to determine city championships.

The first meeting for the model airplane construction club will be at 6:30 Wednesday evening at the field house at Doty park. It was pointed out that model airplane building has become one of the most popular hobbies because of the increasing interest in aviation. The course will be informal and anyone from beginners to advanced gas model builders may enroll. Instructions will be individualized.

Gerhardt reported that he will have charge of city softball diamonds and teams scheduling games should secure permits for diamonds from him. He also reported that groups planning picnics over weekends may use playground equipment providing they contact the supervisors.

U.S. Postpones Utility Hearing

North American Company Asks Further Extension of Time

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—At the request of North American Company of New York, which now controls certain utilities and transportation companies in Wisconsin, the securities and exchange commission has agreed to postpone until June 21 hearings to be held as a result of SEC proceedings under the "death sentence" provision of the holding company act.

The hearings were to have begun last Friday, but North American Company filed a motion asking the SEC for further extension of time.

North American Company controls, directly or indirectly: Fox River Navigation Company; Wisconsin Electric Power Company; Wisconsin Gas and Electric Company; Wisconsin General Railway Company; Milwaukee Electric Railway and Transport Company; Motor Transport Company; Badger Auto Service Company; Milwaukee Light, Heat and Traction Company; Hewitt Electric Company.

The holding company has already indicated, in a formal statement to the SEC, its intention to dispose of its Wisconsin properties, because of SEC requirements for geographical integration of holding company structures. Further time is needed, however, for North American Company to complete plans for its program. This includes abolishing control over gas and electric utility companies having about $450,000,000 of assets, leaving the holding company with a system built around the Union Electric company of Missouri and one additional integrated system based on the Cleveland Electric Illumination company.

the dining room. Presently Eric sat up with a jerk. His nose had caught an odor which made him remember that he had no lunch on that day.

At six-thirty exactly the grinning Grenadine announced dinner. And what a dinner it was!

"What is this heavenly stuff, Isabel?" Brenda demanded. "I've never eaten anything like it before in my life!"

"Stew," was the demure reply. "Plain Irish stew—well, perhaps not exactly plain since I flavored it a bit myself. You see, I want to keep the bills down while Adelaide is away."

Keep the bills down! The boarders stared at one another in amazement. If to serve, in addition to the delicious stew, delicate young beets, a big bowl of salad whose leaves glistened with a dressing, tantalizingly good, crisp fresh rolls, and fig pudding with hard sauce—if to serve all these to perfection was the way to keep the bills down, then heaven be praised for economy!

Need of Consolation
Isobel mounted from triumph to triumph as the week went on. Gone were the slightly rumpled tablecloths and in their stead were fringed oblongs of gay pink and white material. "Bought at the five and ten with what I've saved on the grocery bills," said the housekeeper nonchalantly.

Mac, what do you know? Eric demanded one evening. "My laundry has all been put away—where it belongs—mind you—and not a button missing, not a sock has a hole. Mac was never like this!"

Mac's grateful glance went to Isobel who had flushed becomingly. Eric was loudest in his praises of the new regime but it was Mac who showed his appreciation in tangible ways. Mac brought Isobel a box of the chocolate peppermints of which she was fond. Mac appointed himself official correspondent to Adelaide, wording his letters tactfully.

Guard Officers to Inspect Camp McCoy

Chicago — (U) — A group of Wisconsin national guard officers will visit Camp McCoy, Wis., June 16 to inspect camp sites for the Wisconsin guardsmen who will participate in training maneuvers in August.

In addition they will locate supply facilities and reconnoiter the terrain.

The Wisconsin officers, who will make the inspection with senior national guard officers from Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia, are Colonel Francis X. Ritter of the 107th quartermaster regiment; Lieutenant Colonel Clarence A. Westley, G-4, 32nd division; and Major Harold G. Anderson.

Madison — (U) — Fred Faulkner of Balsam Lake, sentenced in Washington county Nov. 12, 1938, to a one to 10 year term in Waupun prison for assault with intent to murder or rob, was granted a pardon by Governor Heil late yesterday on recommendation of the pardon board.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

Wisconsin Rapids, Wis. — (U) — George Trudell, 21, died yesterday of injuries suffered when his motorcycle and an automobile collided south of here.

telephone in a glow of self-appraisal.

It faded, however, when she considered how badly matters were going with Hugh Saltus. Almost daily he called her up and commanded, or entreated, as his mood might be, that she meet him behind the deserted house and tell him over and over again what she knew about Linda.

Brenda knew the story of their quarrel now. Hugh had insisted on telling her; pleaded that it would do him good to pour it out to a sympathetic soul.

May Call Guard in Maine Disorders

But State Police Feel Situation Hasn't Become Too Difficult

Wells, Maine — (U) — Governor Lewis O. Barrows said he stood ready today to send the national guard into York county if state police find themselves unable to cope with disorders directed against members of a religious sect (Jehovah's Witnesses) who refuse to salute the American flag.

State Police Captain William P. Hancock said, however, that he saw no need of summoning the guard.

"The situation hasn't reached those proportions and won't," said Hancock, commander of a police division embracing a southwestern Maine region in which at least three men have been shot, a sect headquarters burned and pillaged and several sect members "roughed up" since Saturday.

He ascribed the disorders to "youngsters," who in taking an opportunity to "raise the devil" had "gone too far, much too far."

Two men were shot and wounded—one remains in "grave" condition—in a disturbance Sunday at Kennebunk after the sect's headquarters was burned by a crowd of 2,000 persons, and Jerry Semo, 20, of Biddeford, was in "poor" condition at a Biddeford hospital as a result of blood lost from a leg wound suffered in another disturbance last night. It occurred when a crowd assembled outside a man's home here in the mistaken belief he was a member of the sect.

Hancock said he contemplated no action against the occupant of the house, who, the police captain said, admitted firing two shots.
